

is a much larger species than Aaroni; it has not the bright immaculate inferiors below like arpa and differs from palatka in the stigma, which in that species is in two short sections. The superiors in viator above are fuscous, covered with tawny spots.

Pamphila stigma, n. sp.

Male.—Expands  $1\frac{1}{4}$  inches. Upper side: Superiors bright yellow; border fuscous, about one-sixteenth of an inch in width; the fuscous extending slightly inwards into the yellow between the veins. Stigma broad, black, and semicircular; very wide in proportion to its length; extending from stigma toward tip of wing is a rectangular fuscous spot. Inferiors fuscous with an orange central area which is broken into four or five spots by the nerves. Under side: Superiors yellow with the usual fuscous patch at base; there are five fuscous spots on the outer third of wing, which begin at the inner margin and extend upward, each one being smaller than the other as they extend toward the outer third of the centre. Inferiors bright yellow, a few small fuscous spots scattered about the wings. From several specimens in the collection of the author and Dr. Herman Strecker, of Reading, Pa., from southern border of New Mexico and S.-W. Texas. This species somewhat resembles brettus and phyleus, but can be known at once by the stigma, which is like that of campestris.

ASSOCIATION OF ECONOMIC ENTOMOLOGISTS.

The Association of Economic Entomologists will hold its eighth annual meeting in the Library Building, Buffalo, N. Y., on Friday and Saturday, August 21st and 22nd, 1896. The first general session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science will be held on Monday, August 24th, 1896.

It is earnestly requested that members of the Association of Economic Entomologists should promptly inform the Secretary whether they expect to be present or not, and also submit immediately the titles of communications they desire to present, to enable the distribution before the date of the meeting of a preliminary programme.

Full information relating to railroad rates, hotels, etc., is given in the preliminary bulletin of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a copy of which may be obtained by addressing the local Secretary, Mr. Eben P. Dorr, care of Society of Natural Science, Buffalo, N. Y.
