

And there are some sweet fruits of culture which money cannot buy, but which education can advance. Among them are healthy activities in manifold ways of body, mind and spirit. the love of labor, and the habitual exercise of intelligent good-will.

This end of an educated, cultured people, which itself is only a means toward the largest end, is worth striving for and worth living for. All life is an unceasing struggle. The point is to choose the right objects and means. In the past, humanity has been winning all along the line with an occasional set-back, such as threatens the present. Its warfare is ever against ignorance, helplessness, poverty, disease, vice and ill-wills. Education is to train individuals for that warfare. Its endeavors are most successful when the experiences which it provides for each individual are in themselves a vital part of the hard campaign. It must ever vary its strategy and tactics and weapons, as the field of operations is moved forward. Times change and we change with them. The need of the times is education to qualify us all to achieve satisfaction through labor and service and good-will.

"Build on resolve and not upon regret
The structure of thy future; do not grope
Among the shadows of old sins, but let
The light of truth shine on the path of hope
And dissipate the darkness; waste no tears
Upon the blotted record of lost years,
But turn the leaf and smile, oh smile, to see
The fair white pages that remain for thee."