

past year, we should only regard that progress as an incentive to renewed exertions. The future of the Society is in the hands of its members. If each member will resolve to do his utmost during the coming year, and if the members of the Council especially, discharge their duties faithfully and vigorously, we need have no fears but that the progress made during the present year will far exceed that of the past.

E. A. MEREDITH, LL.D.,

President, Literary and Historical Society.

Quebec, January 8, 1861.

