"TAPPED" THE ENGINEER

AND TRAIN WENT ON

Incident Probably Without Parallel in History of Canadian Railroading.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(Special.)—An example of the manner in which the rules of the Grand Trunk are strictly carried out is demonstrated in an incident of recent occurrence on the London, Huron and Bruce at Wingham.

Engineer Matthew Brown, one of the best known men on the road, was suffering from an attack of drowsy, and just before he came to Wingham he was seized suddenly and found it impossible to go any further.

Under the rules of the company when an engineer dies or is taken sick on his engine, the train must be placed into a siding until another engine is secured. The fireman, no matter how capable a man, is not permitted to take charge of the engine.

A physician was summoned in this case and he immediately set about to perform an operation, to "tap" the engineer.

This was successfully done, and when the engineer had recovered, an hour and a half later, he again took charge of his engine and brought it to the city. An other engine had not been available.

Railroad men say that Engineer Brown's case is without a parallel in the history of railroads.

He has now completely recovered, and has his run on the Bruce, but hopes for no more such unique experiences.

FOOD FAD CRAZE.
The latest article of diet to come under the ban of the above is the silent bivalve. The oyster question was recently very carefully gone into by the United States agricultural department.

The result was that the oyster was found to contain as much nutritive property as milk, and as safe an article of diet. Eat them long and often at "The St. Charles, of course"—the noted oyster house.

SUNDAY AMUSEMENTS IN NEW YORK BARRED

WILL TRAFFIC STOP?

Seems Only Way to Electrify Sarnia Tunnel.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(Special.)—A most unusual difficulty confronts the officials of the Grand Trunk in connection with the electrification of the tunnel under the city of Sarnia, between Sarnia and Port Huron. Everything is now ready for the wiring of the big tube.

Twenty-three high electric locomotives went thru London in charge of John Gurney, former turner at the Grand Trunk roundhouse here, and as soon as the wires are installed, then they will be ready for operation.

But how are the wires to be put thru the tunnel? The tunnel is completely diverted from the tunnel route for at least three days? Otherwise the wires cannot be put thru.

It will take that time to complete the work, and it necessitates a clear tunnel in which no deadly gas is contained.
