

IN the fourteenth Report of Inspectors of English Prisons, the Chaplain of Chester prison records the following:—"I consider the chief and immediate cause of crime in this country to be drunkenness, and the want of employment, not so much the latter as the former. I feel convinced that very few prisoners are drawn to crime by destitution."

Captain MULLEN, Governor of Glasgow Prison, says:—"I am quite of opinion that two-thirds of the crime arises out of intemperance, and that many of the aggravated cases of theft are in close connection with drunkenness,—the commission of the former being to raise the means for gratifying a love for the latter vice."
