De Valera and Craig May Get Together For Conference In Belfast

General Smuts Continues Good Work—DeValera Reported Willing After he has Talk With Followers—British Cabinet Takes up Irish Question.

London, July 20.—The probability of a meeting in Belfast between Eamonn De Valera and Sir James Craig, Ulster premier, is foreshadowed in some political quarters and several newspapers this morning. General Smuts, premier of South Africa, who re-entered the negotiations yesterday, doubtless is largely responsible for this and similar optimistic speculations which have survived under great difficulties since Monday, when the Ulster premier left suddenly for Belfast after making a forceful statement on the subject of self-determination as it applied to Ulster. This seemed for a time to end all hope for an amicable meeting between the two Irish leaders, but the moderating influence of General Smuts, coupled with Belfast despatches to the effect that Sir James does not regard the peace talks as interrupted by the recent events, has led to a new understanding. It is reported that De Valera is now reported to be willing to go to Belfast and meet Sir James after he has discussed with his Dublin followers certain proposals which, it is understood, Premier Lloyd George will submit to him on Thursday. In Cabinet Today.

The British cabinet today will give special consideration to the Irish question, and it is believed that the aforementioned proposals will be discussed at great length, and that they are likely to receive the approval of the entire ministry. On the other hand there are still persistent rumors that the cabinet is not altogether harmonious, although definite expressions to this effect are not obtainable.

Staunch Unionist members of the British parliament are reported to be increasingly nervous respecting the progress of Irish affairs, and it is known that about forty of them met yesterday to discuss their positions. As they lacked inside knowledge respecting the negotiations, however, they refrained from reaching any decision as to the action they would take.

New York, July 20.—(Canadian Press).—Under the heading "Canada as a Model for Ireland," the New York World states that it is believed that "it would be well for Irish leaders at this time to consider the case of Canada, furnishing a lesson for their guidance. There, too, were presented racial and religious problems such as have long vexed Ireland. Here Canada has prospered still in spite of all the difficulties there is that the north and south of Ireland, with their close community of interests, should profit. What Canada has done in maintaining the rights of minorities and adjusting the conflicting claims of its population in its system of provincial and federal governments, Ireland under no more unfavorable conditions may well emulate."
