

Sweetly breathes
The noontide winds among the green arcades,
Form'd by a master hand. Glad summer's voice
Thrills in the dabbling brooks and in the notes
Of twice ten thousand warbling choristers?
Look how the grain bends to the breeze's kiss;
And watch the sunlight sparkling thro' the shade
Of yon old time worn wood.

How to do business.—Sir Robert Walpole was asked, how it was possible for him to dispatch such a variety of affairs? he replied, 'by doing one at a time.'

Accidents—One man sucks an orange and is choked by a pip; another swallows a penknife and lives; one runs a thorn into his hand, and no skill can save him; another has the shaft of a gig pass completely through his body, and recovers; one is overturned on a smooth common and breaks his neck; another is tossed out of a gig on Brighton cliff and survives; one walks out on a windy day and meets death by a brickbat; another is blown up in the air, like Lord Hatton in Guernsey Castle, and comes down uninjured. The escape of this nobleman was indeed, a miracle. An explosion of gunpowder, which killed his mother, wife, some of his children, and many other persons, and blew up the whole fabric of the castle, lodged him in his bed on a wall overhanging a tremendous precipice. Perceiving a mighty disorder, (as well he might,) he was going to step out of his bed to know what the matter was, which, if he had done, he had been irrevocably lost; but, in the instant of his moving, a flash of lightning showed him the precipice, whereupon he lay still till the people came and took him down.
