Destroying Our Oyster Industry.

Oystermen protest vigorously, and with right on their side, against the regulation which prohibits the sale of oysters during the close season. Heretofore, oysters raked during the open season and stored could be legally sold; now they cannot. This is a serious loss to the fishermen, for the wholesalers will purchase only enough to meet the demand for present consumption.

The new regulation is, doubtless, made in good faith and fer the pro- of reform. tection of our oyster beds, but it, together with the prohibition of oysterfishing through the ice, deprives North Shore fishermen of their most profitable absurdly short open season.
