WHY SPIRITS ARE SHY

The Shock of Dying Scatters Their Thoughts.

After a Time They Can Collect Proof of Their Identity and Impart It to Us.

(New York Sun.)

One of the most interesting bits of all the spiritual small talk and ghostly club window gossip that comes to us from the other world every now and then by way of dimly lighted back parlors in Boston, Harlem and Williamsburg, is discussed in the current number of the Journal of the American Society for Psychical Research by Dr. James Harvey Hyslop. Dr. Hyslop was once a professor at Columbia but has recently become editor of the society's publication. The paper is established at Boston.

This most interesting of all the many spirit messages received by Dr. Hyslop relates to the jolt the spirit receives at the time of death. It was communicated to the investigator by the spirit of Dr. Richard Hodgson through Mrs. Piper, the Boston medium. Dr. Hodgson as is pretty generally known, is one of the best known and most communicative ghosts they have in the other world.

Dr. Hyslop told yesterday in his home at 519 West 149th street of the many tete-a-tetes he has had with Dr. Hodgson's spiritual self in the last year or so. These messages and the theories suggested to Dr. Hyslop by them were gathered together by the investigator and published in the society's publication, the first paper appearing in the February number under the snappy head: "Experiments with Mrs. Piper Since Dr. Richard Hodgson's Death."

"In the March number I have the best collection of facts ever discussed," said Dr. Hyslop yesterday. "I say they are the best because of the cross-references they contain. The paper in the April number is devoted to theories principally, but there are facts there too which articulate with the evidential facts."

But even in the view of this this thing that makes one sit up is when Dr. Hodgson begins to discuss the jolt he got when he died. He says—but let the ghost tell it himself exactly as he told it through Mrs. Piper, who wrote it out for Dr. Hyslop, who rewrote it for his paper.

"In leaving the body the shock to the spirit knocks everything out of one's thoughts for a while," said the ghost, "but if he has any desire at all to prove his identity he can in time collect enough evidence to prove his identity convincingly."

Dr. Hyslop and the spook got to talking of one thing and another for the time being right after this and did not get down to the spiritual effects until later. Before they got back to the main subject the ghost said to Dr. Hyslop with an evident effort to make conversation:

"I shall never forget your experiments with a so-called light when you took a bottle of red liquid."

"Very good," replied Dr. Hyslop, evidently pleased. "You know what a noise that man made."

In his magazine paper Dr. Hyslop here interrupts the story of the conversation to say that the ghost was wrong as to the color of the liquid. Dr. Hyslop says it was purple not red. Not until a month later did Dr. Hodgson take up the discussion of the shock of death again. It came up when Dr. Hyslop asked Dr. Hodgson if "some of the thoughts came through that he did not intend to send."

"At times they do and then again his thoughts are somewhat changed," answered the spirit pleasantly enough. "They are not exactly what they were when in the body. The change called death, which is really only transition, is very different from what one thinks before he experiences it. That in part explains why Myers never took a more active part after he came here. He had much on his mind before he came which he vowed he would give after he came over, but the shock was such that many of his determinations were scattered from his living memory. This is not a petty excuse, but a living reality—a fact. It is unmistakably so with every one who crosses the border line."

Dr. Hyslop replied then that he understood pretty well what the ghost was driving at and the matter was dropped.

"Who is 'Myers' and when did he die?" Dr. Hyslop was asked by a human being yesterday.

"Frederick W. H. Myers, of England," replied Dr. Hyslop. "He died, three years ago. Now get things right, because the newspapers are always getting names and dates absolutely wrong. He died—three—years—ago. Wait, I'll get you the exact date from this publication The papers might as well have a date right for once Here it is—let me see—why, he died in 1901, it says here! I'm astonished to find he is dead that long. I really felt sure that he has been dead only three years"

"How do you explain the trivial nature of all the messages from the departed doctor?" Dr. Hyslop was asked after an awkward pause. "Why don't they tell us something about the other world instead of discussing the kind of neckties they used to wear while on earth?"

"Of what interest could statements about the other world be to men of science?" was Dr. Hyslop's sharp questioning answer. "Scientific men would cast such statements aside simply because they cannot be verified. The public and the newspapers want that kind of stuff, I know, but they are ignorant about these matters. You must see that it is the messages about what you call little trivial things—things that the medium has no means of knowing—that establish the identity of the spirit.

"It is going to keep us busy collecting facts, trivial facts even, for a long time, perhaps 100 to 200 years, and proving our theories from them before we take up the subject of the nature of the spirit world. I personally have funds to keep at it for five years to come."

REFUSED TO APOLOGIZE, SWETTENHAN RESIGNED

London Standard Says the Governor of Jamaica Had No Dispute With Admiral Davis

LONDON, April 5—The Standard today declares it is able to publish for the first time the circumstances leading to the resignation of Sir Alexander Swettenham as governor of Jamaica. The paper says that according to Sir Alexander's own statement in a letter to an intimate friend, he resigned in consequence of a peremptory demand from the colonial office to apologize to Rear Admiral Davis. To this Sir Alexander replied that if such a course were necessary he would do so with pleasure, but such a compulsory apology carried with it his resignation.

Sir Alexander denies emphatically that there was any dispute between him and the American admiral at the time of the Kingston earthquake, saying: "We were the best of friends during the whole time the admiral was here. He had the use of one of my private carriages and drove around with my private secretary."

The Standard adds that this letter was written purely as one friend might write to another, but it fell into the hands of a newspaper correspondent. If the documents referring to the resignation of Sir Alexander were published, the paper concluded, it would be found that the statement that he applied to be retired "on the ground of age" was entirely misleading.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 4. — Five convicts in the Connecticut State Prison have made a contribution of nine dollars to the Chinese Famine Relief Fund, this amount being sufficient to save nine victims of the food shortage from starvation and to tide them over until the next harvest. Of the five contributors to the fund three are life convicts. The offering was purely spontaneous.

NEWS OF VICTORIA COUNTY

(Victoria County News.)

The crows have returned.

The snow has been disappearing very fast for the past few days.

Potatoes and fertilizer are moving fast in this vicinity.

There is a young man in this vicinity who should take a tool chest and ladder with him when he goes sparking.

If ever the snow gets soft enough I am going to make a snowman and teach him to talk. I will ask him if he ever listened on the telephone and he will probably say "No sir."

Mrs. John Brown who has been confined to the house for some time is about again at present writing.

About all the average man kills when he goes hunting is a lot of time. Many a man has landed in jail by taking things easy.

Miss Ruby Spencer is working for Mrs. Noris Brown.

The grip is claiming a number of victims around here.

Suspicions may be aroused through an act of absolute innocence when accompanied by secrecy.

When the Lord made the earth and animals and birds and reptiles he had a little dirty material left, so he made some low creatures and turned them loose among men. It is their descendants that now crawl up to a telephone when people are talking, and whistle and scratch and squeal and snort. The poor feeble minded things should be pitied instead of blamed; the little daddle of buckwheat-batter in the middle of their thick skulls does not give them sense enough to know they are idiotic.

Johny Hauscom and his brother Will is done in the woods and gone home. Wallace is going away, I wonder where? I see Frank is around again.

Edith Tompkins won the prize at the show in Tilley and some of the girls was feeling pretty blue over it.

Wedding bells are ringing at Bill Barcley's, it's Maggie I guess.

Times foretell that spring is coming. The lumbermen nearly all up this way have broken camp and gone to their respective homes, and no doubt will soon forget their hardships in the forest.

Major Perkins, clerk and surveyor in J. J. Hale's employ left this place on the 24th, he had been suffering the past few weeks with that painful malady, toothache. J. J. Hale accommodating dentist extracted two and broke one.

Tobique Valley Lodge is gaining, three new members were added this week, one J. Griffith, of Kilburn. Old King Alcohol has got to take a back seat in Riley Brook.

Two commercial travellers in this hamlet at present.

Mrs. Joseph Stevesen has been very ill again, glad to learn she is on the mend.

The recent soft weather has caused the bears to leave their dens as one has been seen in this place this week, he seems very tame, to bad if some one would trap him.

Guy McAskill unfortunately fell off the bridge Monday morning while working on it breaking his leg short off between the knee and ankle. Dr. Earle was telephoned for and arrived here that evening leaving at 4 o'clock the next morning.

Well we will thank Mr. Tweeddale for the new plow he sent to us, we got it just in time for the big storm.

If you had of seen our Lake Edward boys Thursday morning march out with their shovels you would have thought it was the Japs fleet then the island grays owned by Arch Howlett, our road master, were hitched to the plow with five more spans and we have got good roads now.

Our school is in charge of Miss Wiggins and we like her fine.

One young man lost his hat in the gale.

The game warden from Ortonville is at his duty, look out boys for your guns.

Gideon Rideout caught a very large eal in the Lake and says there are more.

H. Howlett is the possessor of 11 fine young pigs.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse have returned from the lumber woods after an absence of three months. They were cooking for Clark's crew on Salmon River.

We are very pleased to see that the snow is rapidly going away and it makes very bad traveling.

Lots of comic post cards are flying around here and some are pleased to receive them.

John Day is still on the sick list.

An Easter concert, Basket supper and pie social was held in the Maple View School House which proved a great success. Concert enjoyed by all present and quite a large attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Arthurette paid a short visit to Mr. and Mrs. McInnis.

Gerald McInnis has returned back to the woods again for a short while.

We hear David is on the sick list, to bad for him poor fellow.

Ed. McInnis took tea with Miss D. Laflin but he was afraid to go home again. I wonder why.

Signs of spring. Our March thaw has begun.

Nearly all parties have finished lumbering operations. James Jenkins is not done yet, he attended the District Lodge at Plaster Rock this week.

Post cards are the rage, nearly one hundred mailed at B. L. B. office during this week.

Some one said wedding bells would ring this spring.
