CHATHAM.

All Town Schools Closed on Account of Diphtheria.

The School Inspector has One Home in the Means Time to Weed His Garden—Result of Spilling the Main Brain Too Frequently.

CHATHAM, May 5.—As a result of the diphtheria scare all the schools in town have been closed by order of the board of health; the order includes Sabbath schools.

Inspector McCreary went to New Brunswick to examine the schools of that town and had partly finished his work at that point, but on his return on Monday he was met at the wharf by a member of the board of health and ordered not to resume his duty at the schools upon the ground that he had been examining the schools of Chatham schools, which were under quarantine. The inspector pocketed his order and has gone home to tend his garden.

Several new cases of diphtheria are reported since Saturday, and one other child has succumbed; the funeral took place yesterday.

The new quarantine order very nearly caused trouble between the members of the board of health and some of the trustees board. The board of health carried its point.

A nautical party set out for a little enjoyment on Sunday morning, having chartered the good schooner "Carrie" of Chatham, and appointed a young diphtheria to the post of captain or sailing master. The craft appears to have been the main brace, and the party in a short time had a little mutiny because which developed to such an extent that the crew, who were all men, having assaulted and knocked the captain over the head, and then the party landed on the shore, and the schooner was on board, paced the "fore deck," and his hands and wailing "Oh! they'll be drowned!" he was drowned, and his hands were nearly released, for when they were fished out of the water, and both wanted the services of Dr. Richard were called in to resuscitate him. It required an hour's work, which included rolling on a rug, and other manipulations, before the whisky and water finally set him right, and a valuable citizen returned to an anxious community. Dr. Barker attended to another case of diphtheria, sewing up some of his wounds.

The lieutenant governor spent Sunday in town and left for Fredericton on Monday.

Rain fell on Sunday morning and has continued ever since much to the delight of lumbermen, who have their logs hung up on many streams, and the rain was very much needed by the farmers.

An Alleged Fire Bug Proves an Honest Thief—The Late R. L. Treadwell, K. G.

HAMPTON, May 4.—This afternoon William McDermott, who has been in jail since last Friday on suspicion of having set fire to the premises of the late Rev. William Treadwell on May 1st, was brought before Henry Pier, J. P., at the court house, on remand, and a number of witnesses testified as to what they knew of the matter.

Maggie E. Perkins, in the service of the late Rev. William Treadwell, gave a short account of the fire on the morning, at which time there was no appearance of fire of smoke. The only persons in the house were Mrs. Treadwell, Miss Laura Treadwell and herself. Just after the express train had gone up, about nine o'clock, she went from the kitchen through the woodshed to the barn, where only fuel was stored. She found the fire, she then saw smoke, and on going into the upper part found the barn in flames. She immediately gave the alarm. All the doors of the barn and woodshed were locked, and no one could get into the barn except by going from the kitchen through the woodshed. Up to the time of finding the place on fire she saw no person about the premises. She had not deposited any rubbish in the barn or woodshed that morning. She had never seen the prisoner before today.

Alexander Scott, in the employ of Samuel Hayward, testified that he saw the prisoner coming out of the lower part of the Treadwell premises between half-past seven and eight o'clock on Friday morning. He was about ten feet inside the fence, and on coming out turned toward the station. He

ANOTHER BUFFALO TRAGEDY

Follows Fast on Heels of Burdick-Pennell Murder Mystery.

A Capitalist, Mine Owner and Her Merchant Shot By His

Who Gave Herself up to Police—The Old Divorce Repeated.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 4.—John Costello, capitalist, mine owner and a member of the Buffalo Athletic Club, was shot and seriously wounded this afternoon in a corridor of the Buffalo Hotel. The shooting was down to the police headquarters gave herself up. No charge was lodged against the woman pending outcome of Mr. Costello's wounds.

The shooting was the outcome of years of infidelity and open war in the courts between Costello and his wife, who are well known in society. They have been separated several years, during which time legal litigation has been engaged in. Costello later made frequent attempts to gain possession of her, and it is alleged has been questioning her about her infidelity.

The story of the shooting as told by the police is that Mrs. Costello opened the door to her husband's room and saw him with another woman. She said she saw him with another woman, and she said she saw him with another woman. She said she saw him with another woman, and she said she saw him with another woman.

Mr. Costello was removed to hospital. Mrs. Costello walked to the police headquarters and asked Supt. Bull. When informed that her husband was in the hospital, she said she would wait for him.

Upon showing Assistant Superintendent Cusack the revolver which she said was the one which she used to shoot her husband, she was locked up on an open charge. Police tried to get more information from Mrs. Costello, but she evaded questions and finally refused to answer.

The surgeons at the hospital put the bullet in Costello's back some three inches deeper, but they were unable to locate it.

MONROE DOCTRINE

Endorsed by Sir Alex. E. Miller, of British Point of View.

Sir Alexander E. Miller, former legal member of the governor-general's council in India, in the May number of the American Review, writes of the Monroe Doctrine from a Standpoint. The writer ridicules the doctrine as being neither more the government and the people of the United States that they would upon any attempt at territorial

An Alleged Fire Bug Proves an Honest Thief—The Late R. L. Treadwell, K. G.

HAMPTON, May 4.—This afternoon William McDermott, who has been in jail since last Friday on suspicion of having set fire to the premises of the late Rev. William Treadwell on May 1st, was brought before Henry Pier, J. P., at the court house, on remand, and a number of witnesses testified as to what they knew of the matter.

Maggie E. Perkins, in the service of the late Rev. William Treadwell, gave a short account of the fire on the morning, at which time there was no appearance of fire of smoke. The only persons in the house were Mrs. Treadwell, Miss Laura Treadwell and herself. Just after the express train had gone up, about nine o'clock, she went from the kitchen through the woodshed to the barn, where only fuel was stored. She found the fire, she then saw smoke, and on going into the upper part found the barn in flames. She immediately gave the alarm. All the doors of the barn and woodshed were locked, and no one could get into the barn except by going from the kitchen through the woodshed. Up to the time of finding the place on fire she saw no person about the premises. She had not deposited any rubbish in the barn or woodshed that morning. She had never seen the prisoner before today.

Alexander Scott, in the employ of Samuel Hayward, testified that he saw the prisoner coming out of the lower part of the Treadwell premises between half-past seven and eight o'clock on Friday morning. He was about ten feet inside the fence, and on coming out turned toward the station. He
