Taxation Without Representation.
Some of the State of Maine ladies, like some St. John men, are likely to become as famous in resisting taxes as Abby Smith and the collecting that Abby Smith and the other being that Abby Smith and the other being that Abby Smith and the other women act on their own convictions and the men do as they are told by their spiritual superiors. We see by the Bangor Whig that six Ellsworth ladies, whether maids or widows we are not informed, have published the following protest to the cellector, assessors and citizens of the city generally, against citizens of the city generally, against being taxed until they are represented:

no voice in making, you place us in a political scale lower than Foreigners and Negroes, and class us with Indians, Crimimals and Idiots.

"By taking our property for taxes without our consent you violate the rights guaranteed us as citizens—you dely the laws of the United States and appearance in this list.
