

been here quite a week but already I feel I would say here with pleasure long time. My months in Switzerland, however, I do not regret and never will regret spending - it was full of pleasure and pleasure and joy. I learned a good deal of French, had a jolly good time, and made some friends from whom I was genuinely sorry to part.
My last week there - the first week of my stay - was the pleasantest of all.
I gave it up to sight seeing and curious and saw the lake pretty thoroughly. On the Wednesday I took a 60 mile trip around the Alps from Lausanne to Evian, & passed through a lot of towns & pretty Swiss villages, it took me over four hours and was most interesting and I came back in the day evening across the lake from Evian by boat very stead with that feeling of 20th century and satisfaction that there is the road. The next day I started and saw some of the sights of Lausanne, and on Friday afternoon I went with one of the young Germans to our pension and taking the boat of the lake visited the chateau of Chillon and saw it outside and inside very thoroughly and a most charming and romantic old place to see. When we met again I will show you an excellent set of photographs of the place there, at present I can only say that as I stood in that dark underground cell and saw the three pillars with their iron rings in each, the little slit of a prison window through which the sunlight gleamed and one could
