

religion to be found in it. Now I want to assure all such people that if ever that was true, which I very much doubt, it has all passed away long ago and is now ancient history. The Anglican Church since that day has vastly changed, even in its methods, and still more in the spirit that animates it, and they should revise their history and bring it up to date. No religious body in the world to-day shows more missionary zeal, more self-sacrifice, both in men and means, for the sake of Christ's cause, more love of truth and righteousness ; in short, more real piety than the Anglican Church. These things are open and known to all the world, and to persist in the face of all this in thinking of the Church, and representing it to-day as precisely the same as it was two hundred years ago is either culpable ignorance or to love prejudice rather than truth.

NEED OF EARNESTNESS.

But in all our Jubilee celebrations let us keep at least these two things always in view : first, to remember that, whatever else we may say or do, the dominant note should be thanksgiving to God. For whatever of revived life, energy and unity the Church now manifests, whatever of privilege and opportunity we possess
