I LOVE THE LADIES, EVERY ONE.

I love the Ladies, every onc-The laughing, ripe brunette,
Those dark-eyed daughters of the sun,
With tresses black as jet.
What raptures in their glances glow!
Rich tints their cheeks disclose,

And in the little dimplets there, Young simling Loves repose. I love the Ladies, every one-

The blends so soft and fair, With looks so mild and languishing, And bright and golden hair. How loyely are their sylph-like forms, Their alabaster hue, And their blushes, far more beautiful Than rose-buds bathed in dew!

I love the Ladies, every one-E'en those whose graceless forms Are rugged as the oak that's borne A hundred winters' storms.

The young, the old, the stout, the thin, The short as well as tall, Widows and wives, mat ons and maids— Oh, yes! I love them all!

I love the Ladies, every one—
None but a wretch would flout 'em;
This world would be a lonely place,
If we were left without 'em. But, lighted by a woman's smile, Away a'l gloom is driven, And the most humble home appears

Almost a little Heaven 1 love the Ladies, every one— They're Angels all, God bless 'em! And what can greater pleasures give
Than to comfort and cares's 'em?
I call myself a Temperance man,
So I'll drink their health in water— Here's to the mothers, one and all,

The Montreal, Gazette informs us that Messrs.
