OBITUARY

The Angel of Death visited Western Bay yesterday and took from our midst a highly esteemed and beloved brother in the person of Samuel Butt, assistant light-keeper, where he has been employed ever since its erection at Western Bay. Deceased was a prominent churchman, always on hand when help was needed both in the church and Sunday school, and always ready to lend a hand when he was needed in the great and glorious fight of spreading the gospel of God and endeavouring to bring precious souls unto his Kingdom. He also was a member of the Loyal Orange Association, and a pastmaster of that order, and his death will be keenly felt among the brethren, as he was always in attendance, and when anything that needed special attention or discussion of any kind occurred he was always the chief advisor, always studying every detail and very careful in giving his decision so that it would always be directed towards the welfare of the Lodge. He leaves a wife and four daughters to mourn the loss of a loving husband and kind father.

Sept. 14, 1916. L. ROSE.

Well, anyway, this hot weather gives us an excuse for kidding the fat folks.

DEATH HAD NO TERROR FOR THE IRISH SOLDIERS

Like a Human Avalanche They Dashed Into the Village of Guillemont, and Cheered by Their Officers They Swept Away All Resistance Capturing the Germans First, Second and Third Lines.

(By Philip Gibbs)
(Special Cable to Halifax Morning Chronicle.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Sept. 9.—The first mention of Irish troops fighting at Guillemont has been made officially, and it is now possible to write about them in more detail. Their charge through Guillemont last Sunday with English battalions of riflemen on their right, was one of the most astonishing feats of the war, almost too fast in its impetuosity. They went forward with pipes playing them on to a wild and irresistible assault. If there had been three times their number of the enemy against them they would not have been checked until they had carried the northern part of the ruined waste, that was once a village.

Like a Human Avalanche

The English troops who fought with them tell me they have never seen anything like the way in which these Irishmen dashed ahead. "It was like a human avalanche," said one of them. The officers cheered their men on as they came alongside, one of their commanding officers following the last across picked up pieces of chalk to throw after his men, shouting good luck to them. They stormed the first, second and third German lines through the upper part of the village, sweeping all resistance away, and not stopping to take breath.

No Fear of Death.

Death had no terror for them, nor all the dead men who lay in their way. After months of dull and dogged fighting in the trenches they were excited at getting out into the open and meeting the enemy face to face. The only fault with this fighting at Guillemont was the rapidity of the pace, which gave them no time to safeguard the ground behind, but that was a fault due to the splendour of their gallantry and no harm from it.

The Englishmen who fought on their right had more solidity in their way of going about the business, but they were so inspired by the sight of the Irish dash, and by the sound of the Irish pipes that those who were in support under orders to stand and hold the first German line, could hardly be restrained from following on.

"I nearly blew my teeth out of my head in whistling 'em back," said an English Sergeant, but discipline prevailed.

Ignored Bullets and Bombs

An enveloping movement was being made by English troops to the southwest of the village and it was here that the most opposition was encountered between two sunken roads. In the second sunken road where the enemy had a row of strong dugouts the ground was thick with huddled dead, but from the dugouts came a large number of living men who climbed on to the parapet in front of them and maintained a fusillade of rifle fire and bombs. At the same time a machine fire coming down from Ginchy and up from Fallmout Farm made it difficult ground to cover, but our men ignorant the bullets and bombs and went straight forward, halting only to fire and then going on again and firing again as though on manoeuvres. Some Lewis gunners ran forward and played a hose of bullets upon the enemy parapets.

Germans on the Run.

Then the Germans started running and our men went after them. There were a hundred and fifty dead in one part of the sunken road, and the dug-outs were crowded. Into one of them smoke bombs were thrown to tease the men out, but they would not come. Then a mill's bomb was flung in as a stronger argument, but before it exploded it was flung back again. After that the Germans retreated through their tunnel and ran out another entrance where they were taken prisoners. Twenty-five of them were put into a shell crater under guard of one little rifleman who strutted up and down in a German helmet, with his bayonet high above his head and a pride twice as high as his bayonet. In one dugout there were forty-one bodies, of whom only three were alive and these were weeping.

Enemy's Spirit Broken

All prisoners, of whom there were about 800, were in a pitiful condition, as our artillery fire had prevented them getting any rations for three days. Their spirit was broken and they were trembling with fear. In our dugouts further back were three officers, one of whom a young captain who was in command of the whole garrison at Guillemont. He was the only man who maintained a proud indifference at the moment of capture. He stood very straight and still as though not caring whether he lived or died. Two officers with him clung about the necks of our own officers crying for mercy.

Pleaded for his Life.

In another place an officer fell down on his knees with his hands in an attitude of prayer and his head bowed and one man pulled out a photograph of his wife and children holding them out as his strongest plea for life but our men had no thought to take their lives. One sergeant of ours who had been hit in the hip by a piece of shell, captured four men with out help and then ordered them to carry him back on a stretcher to the dressing station where he arrived smoking a cigarette with his prisoner stretcher bearers. Of the German garrison of two thousand men hardly one in any company

NINETY FEMALES AWAIT ADMISSION TO HOSPITAL.

A young chap, a native of Trinity, who was at Battle Hr. arrived by the Prospero. He is very ill but Mr. E. Whiteway had to put him in a boarding house, there being no cots or beds vacant in the Hospital here. Mr. Whiteway says that there are now 90 female patients in the city waiting to get into the General Hospital but there is not a cot vacant there. This is a pretty state of affairs and one which fully demonstrates the humanitarian feelings of the present crowd of grafters who have control of affairs in this unfortunate country. If any of their people die their deaths will lay at the doors of Morris and his bootlers, who should know of the conditions prevailing among the poor, and should have more than one hospital built in the outbarbours ere this.

escaped. Figures have been accounted for in dead, wounded and prisoners, showing two German battalions thus wiped out. Among them were men who wear the word Gibraltar on their shoulder straps, belonging to the famous Hanoverian Regiment which fought side by side with us on the Rock in the Eighteenth Century.
