

In future, that some of their children who have spent one or more years in that college have notions about the Bible that are really repulsive to their feelings as Christians. Those parents do not want their children to be educated in that way. Some of them read the Morning Organ, but it is as dumb as an ox in respect to removing the evil. Will Messrs. Dr. Taylor, Kennedy, Farquharson and McLeod of the school board, please ignore this? They seem to be afraid of the influence of the Catholic nun, and why? Catholic parents want their children brought up as Christians, and they are consistent in their efforts for that purpose.

R.T. TANNER & Co., wholesale and retail shoe dealers, Pictou, have assigned. Their liabilities are $40,000.
The steamer Princess started for Pictou yesterday morning, but was obliged to return after getting within a short distance of Point Prim. The Stanley went on the Charlotteown-Pictou route this morning. The ferry boats had enough to do yesterday to effect crossings between the City and Southport.
DURING Saturday night the coldest recorded was 11 above zero, with the wind blowing at the rate of 32 miles an hour. During Sunday night the lowest point reached was 6 above zero. The velocity of the wind at nine o'clock Sunday night was fifteen miles an hour. At nine o'clock Monday morning 8 miles an hour was the average.

Monday from Montague Bridge on the Atlantic coast the intelligence that Captain Hayes of the schooner Warren W. had been missing since Friday night last and it was thought he was drowned in the river. The river was dragged on Monday but the body had not been found. It appears that early on Friday afternoon the Warren W. finished loading at Montague wharf, about two miles down the river from Montague, and hauled out into the stream. Subsequently the Captain came ashore and proceeded to Montague where he remained about three hours. Then he hired a man to take him back to his schooner. It was then between nine and ten at night. This man left him on the wharf getting into his boat, and that was the last seen of him. There was some ice formed in the river, and it is supposed that in his efforts to get the boat through the ice to the schooner the Captain fell overboard. The crew of the schooner were anxiously regarding the Captain's whereabouts on Saturday, but could not get on shore to make enquiries, as they had no boat. Finally they called out to some people on shore and made the fact of the Captain's absence known. A search was at once made for Captain Hayes, but his whereabouts could not be ascertained. The missing boat was found on the ice with the oars lying beside it. The Captain's hat was found on the ice. Captain Hayes belonged to Souris. His body was found in the river on Monday evening.

The bazaar and fair opened in the Lyceum Monday evening. There was a fair attendance, and was continued yesterday afternoon and evening, and will wind up to-night. The different tables will be well stocked. The League of the Cross band furnishes the music.

The Messenger of the Sacred Heart for January, 1897, will be a Christmas Number. The change announced last month has been effected, and henceforth the Messenger with its supplement will be the only official organ of the League. Nothing has been spared to make the first number issued a fair specimen of what the Messenger should be. The prose writing and verse are all of the best; the illustrations are unusually fine, six original drawings by first class artists appearing in this one number. The frontispiece is Carlo Dolci's Madonna and Child, underneath which is printed an exquisite Christmas lullaby, "A tale of a lover of Christ" (St. Ursula); "Rome with Archbishop Segara"; "Some Religious Founders of the Order of the Virgin"; "St. Robert Southwell, poet and martyr"; a story, entitled "A Christmas Gloria"; "The Prodigal" (concluded); a scholarly and poetic version of the Stabat Mater Spemiosa—are some of the attractions for this month. The supplement contains the GENERAL INSTRUCTION, which is "The Welfare of Religious Communities"; "A Christmas Mass in the Mountains"; a new editorial department, in which topics of serious interest to religion are treated with sound Catholic sentiments. Notes from Head and Local Centres, the Directors Review, Thanksgiving, other departments of League work.

The League of the Cross band furnishes the music.
