All's Well.

For some days past there has been very little detailed information of what is going on along the extended line of battle in France. We are now getting little more than a general statement that all is well along the line. This should content us, for it is but reasonable to suppose there are good reasons for the suppression of detailed information. It has already been found out that the Germans have been obtaining information by means of spies and buried cable lines. Moreover it must not be forgotten that information published in the press of their enemies contributed largely to the intelligence which enabled the Germans to smash the Austrians in 1866 and the French in 1870. It therefore behoves those who have charge of the operations of the Allies to take most effectual steps to prevent information being given out to satisfy the natural curiosity of their own people, which may aid the enemy in upsetting their plans and which may contribute to their own defeat. While our heroes are giving their lives and limbs, while others are training to step into the breach, it is little to ask from us to rest content with the little detailed information that is forthcoming. We must rely on the assurance "That all is well along the Potomac" and amuse ourselves with looking at the humorous side of it. In this connection, the story is told of a London newsboy, offering a newspaper to a prospective purchaser with the enticing remark: "Latest Edition of Kitchener's Silence, Sir!" As we have pointed out frequently, the Germans are not progressing anything like so well as they did in 1870. In that year the war opened on July 19th. On August 4th the French were defeated at Wissemburg; on August 6th, they were again defeated at Worth; from August 16-18, followed the great disasters at Vionville and Gravelotte, and on Sept. 1st, the crowning disaster of Sedan. By Sept. 15th the Crown Prince was beginning siege of Paris and the army left were in Paris, eventually surrounded, and the army besieged at Metz. Fifty-eight days from the commencement of the war, France was crippled, as she had no army left to relieve those besieged in fortified cities. In that war, time was not a predominant factor. In this war time is almost everything to the Germans. To gain time, they sacrificed their honor, tore up treaties and risked war with England to get to Paris before the Russians could mobilize in overwhelming strength. They were going to dine in Paris before the middle of August. By the 29th of September they have been driven away from Paris and back from the Marne to the Aisne, where they have been endeavoring for more than a fortnight to strengthen themselves for a new forward movement. We are told officially that all the forward movements have been foiled, and that the news from the left wing, where the Allies are trying to turn the flank is favorable, and also that the Allies are gaining ground on the Meuse. This is good news to come 60 days after the war started and 30 days after the Kaiser planned to dine in Paris. German strategy has failed. The German War Machine has been scotched, and now will come the mil-

Well Received.

Mr. Frederick Knight, who made his debut so successfully last night, at the popular Crescent, will on Wednesday and Thursday sing "Queen of the Earth," by Pissuti, a song he made famous in the "Isle of Champagne" with the late Thomas Seabrook. This will be in direct contrast to the Bohemian Girl, the selection being very heroic in character. Mr. Knight intends to intersperse his operatic selections with the good old Scotch, Irish and English songs which he has in preparation and which will be sure to delight the patrons of the Crescent, being blessed with a real tenor voice, so rare today, of a beautifully sympathetic quality, over which he has absolute control. It is true, resonant and powerful, and his enunciation and phrasing a real delight. Mr. Knight has already made a wonderful impression on the music loving people of St. John's, his engagement here is sure to be most successful, for he is a real artist who cannot fail to be appreciated. The management of the Crescent are to be congratulated on having secured the services of Mr. Frederick Knight.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, Sept. 29th, 1914.
 A box of our Antiseptic Throat Pastilles is a handy thing to have in one's pocket these days. These pastilles have an effect in soothing irritation of the membranous tissues of the throat which is in many cases really remarkable. A few of these will often stop a cold in its early stages, which might if neglected develop serious proportions. In damp, cold weather a few of these pastilles sucked at intervals will prevent or stop the irritation of the throat which is so annoying, and will relieve more advanced cases. Price 25 cents a box.

If you are a user of Cream of Lilies and Cream of Lilies Soap, your skin is reasonably safe against all weather. We make Cream of Lilies in our own laboratory, and experience has shown it to be splendidly adapted to the peculiarities of our climate, and to compare favorably with more expensive toilet creams in its effects. The Soap ably backs up the Cream in helping to preserve the complexion.

Gallant Jack.

On Tuesday last, when the British cruiser Cressy was sinking, a blue-jacket saw a white ensign on deck. He grasped the old bit of bunting and placing it between his teeth swam around in the surf for nearly three hours before being rescued by a Dutch trawler. In the hotel a correspondent saw him asleep with the flag spread over him, and the correspondent was told that the sailor had been prepared to fight to the last ditch before he would part with the flag.

In 1805 occurred the famous battle of Trafalgar in which Nelson was killed after achieving a great victory.

THE CALL.

Sons of the Sea Mother, list to the crying!
 War bounds are loose on the Belgian plain,
 Strangling the prayer in the throats of the dying,
 Fangs dipping red with the blood of the slain,
 Beating the trail stalks the foul-footed hussars,
 Carnage, the hell-born mistress of Hate,
 Trampling on honor, on virtue, on gladness,
 Spitting her spleen on the pages of Fate.

Sons of the Sea Mother, list to the calling,
 Voiced from the ghost-haunted Netherlands main,
 Voiced from the souls of the heroes when falling,
 "What we have done, ye can do yet again,
 "Come! for we know, we have seen, we have striven
 "Against the horrors that howl in the fell Demon's wake,
 "Come! that her brood to their kennels be driven,
 "Sons of the Sea Mother, Freedom's at stake!"

Sons of the Sea Mother, rally, oh, rally!
 Self has no place in this moment of need,
 Stream in your thousands from highland and valley,
 Staunch as of yore, the old Sea Mother breed,
 Come that the children yet cradled in glory,
 Sons of the Sea Mist, in ages to be, Shout with acclaim, as their sires read your story,
 "They answered the rally, Thank God, We are free!"

Our M. G. Brigade, which has been idle during the busy summer months met for the first time this season on Saturday night. A large crowd of the young fellows composing this Brigade were present, and after performing the necessary business, they went through a succession of drills, which were successfully performed. On Sunday morning they paraded to the church for Divine service, the meeting was largely attended and was conducted by our pastor, Rev. W. M. Muir.

Death has been very prevalent amongst us of late, and has taken away a number of our elderly men and women. It visited us a couple of days ago, and took from our midst Mr. James Cooper, a 62 year old resident of this place. The late Mr. Cooper had been feeling poorly for the last couple of years, but about a week ago he received a severe stroke of paralysis of the brain, which made him unconscious, this stroke being so severe he never again regained consciousness.

We have two more arrivals of our Labrador schooners. Our second arrival was the schooner Hilda Blanche, Anasias March, captain, with about 200 qts. of codfish; the next arrival was the schooner C. W. G., James Rodgers, captain, with about 270 qts. of fish.

Fish being very scarce at this place during the summer, some of our fishermen decided to spend the fall fishing in the_ticks, at a place called Friday's Cove. During the first part of September these fishermen secured fair catches, but some of them met heavy losses, during the gale which prevailed last week, and they have to abandon the voyage for this season as they lost their fishing skills.

The people of this place, especially the young people, are very busy still, trying to secure as many berries as possible this year. Everybody is making a strong effort, as the fishery has been a very poor one, and provisions have reached a very high figure. Berries are selling here now for 15 cents per gallon and the rise,
