IN THE EAST.

The week opens with war news that is distinctly cheering. Everywhere the Allies are on the offensive and almost everywhere successfully. Though sterling work is being done in the West, it is now to the East that attention is first of all directed and there particularly to Roumania. By this time the purpose of Germany in these operations is sufficiently clear, and the possibilities of the situation have been sufficiently exhausted by commentators for us to read the inner meaning of events as they take their course. Mackensen must hold fast in the Dobrudja and Falkenhayn cut his way through to him, or at least overrun Wallachia; anything short of this would be valueless to the enemy. The mere fact, therefore, that our Allies have been able to take the offensive on both fronts is encouraging, and their gains in Dobrudja are proof enough that they have the position well in hand.

Simultaneously the Serbian army continues to push forward, the plucky vanguard of the forces that aim at Monastir. Few maps are on a scale large enough to show the exact disposition of this important front and the location of the names that appear in the messages, but all will show the Ichuna River and the loop inside which the present fighting is taking place. The Allied forces seem to be pivoted upon Kenali and to be swinging their right wing forward. The late successes are the more gratifying in the light of the heavy reinforcements the Bulgarians are known to have received.

It is of the utmost significance that the French Minister of War, General Roques, is now visiting Salonika. For such success as this campaign achieves—and many observers consider it second to none in importance—France will obtain the major credit; and if the delay in achieving it proves serious, the blame will be with the hesitation of the other Allies in sharing her views and following her firm lead. Had Greece been brought into line months ago and General Sarraill been enabled to give his great army fair play, the Balkan situation might now wear a very different aspect. On the other hand there is a good deal to be said for the more temperate policy advocated and contrived by England, for more drastic action might have antagonised even the favourable elements of the Greek people. There are now signs, though they come late in the day, that a much closer understanding has been reached with the whole country, excluding the pro-German Court, and that the voluntary movement to the Allies' standards will gain momentum rapidly. In any case, we may look for vigorous action of some sort following the visit of General Roques. If Monastir can be ours before winter, or even without it, Bulgaria will have much to think about in the interval separating them from the overwhelming hostilities that next spring will usher in.

A GREAT REPUTATION.

No Newfoundland can read without pride the accumulating testimony that reaches us of the fine part played by the Regiment last month. Perhaps we may be inclined to consider ourselves more important than others do and emphasise these matters a little, but it is a universal failing, and in this case we can point to the facts as our justification. We know that our boys took the trench they set out to take, that they accounted for many Germans in doing so; and that they held another trench that was not included in their own programme. We may be forgiven, then, for blowing our trumpet somewhat loudly. The point to be emphasised is that we must have occasion to continue to blow it. No better recruiting appeal could be desired than this news, no more potent incentive to our young manhood. Lieut. Penney, of the Royal Engineers, a Canadian boy, says: "They have indeed made a great reputation and are living up to it." And our knowledge of the men and of what they have already done compels us to boast that as long as a man remains in the Regiment its reputation will be lived up to and maintained. Last week's recruiting effort in the city met with a fine and unexpected response; and what can be done in St. John's can be done everywhere else in the Island. The frequent mention of our men in the casualty lists and the many honours they have carried off are proof enough of their mettle, it is impossible to think they are the only ones. Many more as brave and capable remain, to whom they have given the lead. That it will be followed no one who knows Newfoundland can doubt.

Gallipoli and France Veterans on Furlough.

By the express which reached town at 3 p.m. Saturday the following Gallipoli and France veterans arrived on furlough:—Sergeant F. Mercer, Sergeant J. Temple, Privates H. Greene, S. Stove, W. Muford, T. Hammond, G. Greening, H. Coady, M. Downey, B. Sinnott, A. Metcalf, M. Tucker, W. Vigners, H. Mercer, F. Fox, A. Myler, H. Stone. On stepping to the platform the veterans of two campaigns were greeted by a large crowd of citizens, including Lady Davidson, the Premier and Lady Morris, the Ladies' Reception Committee, Major Montgomery and Officers and men of the Volunteers now in training and parents and friends of the returning heroes. In extending the official welcome to the returned soldiers the Premier on behalf of the country at large, thanked them for valuable services they had rendered the Empire and pointed out the great necessity of others filling up the gaps made vacant on Oct. 11th and 12th. At the conclusion of the Premier's address the men were placed in automobiles and driven to Government House, where they were received and entertained by His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson. Mr. M. Flynn, of Heart's Ease, T.B., at the request of Lady Davidson, called for three cheers for the returning heroes, in such a hearty manner that the crowd responded with vociferous cheering.

Motor Truck Runs Amok.

About 2.45 p.m. Saturday while Ayre and Sons truck was proceeding down McBride's Cove, a package fell off the back. The driver stopped the machine to pick it up, but to all appearance forgot to apply the brakes. In the meantime two small boys got behind the machine and gave it a push with the result that the heavily laden truck dashed down the steep incline and struck with full force a horse and square-body wagon tied to a telephone pole. The shafts of the vehicle were broken in pieces but to the great surprise of those that witnessed the accident the horse escaped without injury.

McMurdo's Store News

MONDAY, Nov. 13, 1916. Owing to the impossibility of obtaining French Perfumes this year we shall for the first Christmas for many years, have to manage without these dainty and elegant perfumes. We would say, however, that we have found what we believe to be an efficient substitute in the way of a celebrated English firm, which is sending us a fine assortment of their most attractive packages. We hope to have these perfumes within a couple of weeks, and will of course give a more particular account of them in due time. The prices will, we believe, be considered quite reasonable, having regard to the quality of the goods. Just arrived Pinx, 60c. a bottle; Sandiment Tooth Paste, 25c. a tube.

POLICE COURT.—Judge Morris presided to-day and gave Torbay fisherman of 83 summers who was charged with being drunk in charge of a horse his freedom. Nascope Here From Far North.

The s.s. Nascope, Capt. Mack, arrived here at noon to-day from Hudson Bay ports, where she was engaged landing supplies since August last. The ship went as far north as Chesterfield. The last place left was Port Chimo and the run from there occupied six days, during which boisterous weather was encountered. She brought along 15 passengers, including 8 adults and 7 children, from the different places visited, also a quantity of furs, etc. The officers of the ship report that when leaving the Hudson Bay coast a week ago winter had set in in real earnest. Daily the weather was bad. It was intensely frosty with an occasional storm and that ice had formed to considerable thickness. The Nascope will be leaving here again in the course of a few days for Montreal.

Reback the mirror by painting the damaged surface with silver or white paint. The rough outside leaves of the lettuce it mixed will make nice sandwiches.

Deutschlanders in Knife Affray.

New London, Conn., Nov. 3.—Unless they succeed in rounding up two men said to be sailors from the German subsea freighter Deutschland, involved in a stabbing affair early to-day, the local police probably will demand that Captain Koenig investigate and turn them over.

According to the authorities, one of the sailors forced his attentions on a girl in a restaurant and when a waiter interposed the latter was stabbed in the arm with a pocket knife. Both men hurried away and police search of the Wilhelm, mother ship for the Deutschland was unavailing.
