Briand Determined on German Disarmament.

Boston Has Builders' Strike--Steel Company Refuse to Back Down--Montreal Restaurant Gave Free Meals--Six Policemen Ambushed and Killed--Other Murders Reported.

SENT ON DISARMAMENT.

PARIS, Jan. 20. The prime purpose of the Briand treaty in directing the government of the nation will be to obtain real disarmament for France through disarmament of Germany, it was declared in the new ministerial statement of the day placed before the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon.

THE BRIAND PROGRAMME.

PARIS, Jan. 20. Premier Aristide Briand presented his programme of his Ministry to the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate today. The programme contains no outstanding points, namely, Germany must disarm and pay the reparation due from her. Briand has three to compel respect for engagements taken with her, and would like to use it if necessary, but it is not his intention to bring Germany to her knees. Peace with Germany must be made effective. On this point Briand is firm. France will not intervene in the internal affairs of Russia, but she will admit that her armies shall be the Russian frontiers to attack the allies of France. Confidence is expressed that Britain will aid in the settlement of all questions concerning peace now in suspense.

OUT ON STRIKE.

BOSTON, Jan. 20. Twelve thousand Building Trades men walked out on strike today as a result of a dispute over the wages. Approximately 100 others have been out of work since time.

REDUCTION IN WAGES WILL STAND.

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 20. The management of the Steel Plant has a Committee from the steel workers met in consultation today after noon in regard to the matter of the recent twenty per cent. cut in wages, which the company had decided would have to go into effect.

The men's committee requested that the cut be withdrawn, or at least modified. This the company said was impossible under present existing conditions. From information given to the men's representatives, it is said that they went away fully convinced of the justice of the company's action and that it would be impossible for the company to continue doing business under the old rate of wages.

FED THE UNEMPLOYED.

MONTREAL, Jan. 20. Taking matters in their own hands, between one hundred and two hundred unemployed entered a restaurant on McGill St. at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon and demanded a meal. The Manager decided to satisfy their demand and served out free food.

SIX POLICEMEN KILLED IN AMBUSH.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20. District Inspector Clarke, a sergeant and four constables were killed and a sergeant and constable wounded in an ambush at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon at Glenwood, near the six mile bridge, it was announced by the authorities in Dublin Castle this evening.

DREW A TIGHT CORDON.

CORK, Jan. 20. In the official destruction to-day of two houses in Washington Street, where two members of the Royal Irish Constabulary were attacked on Saturday last, large forces of military arrived on the scene at eleven o'clock and drew a cordon around several blocks and no one was permitted to enter or leave the area.

BRADY GETS OUT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. After a conference here late this afternoon between Tex Rickard and Wm. A. Brady, who holds a power of Attorney for Charles Cochran, the third joint promoter in the proposed Dempsey-Carpentier bout, the former announced that he had offered to take

REPRISALS.

CORK, Jan. 20. The first official destruction for an attack on Crown forces in Cork city since martial law was enforced were carried out this morning, when two houses in Washington Street, where members of the Constabulary were attacked on Saturday last, were destroyed.

STRIKERS WERE QUICKLY RE-PLACED.

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 20. Some twenty men engaged by the Cape Breton Co. cutting ice at Grand Lake, went on strike this afternoon, demanding five cents an hour more pay. According to information received to-night the men were readily replaced and the work was not tied up very long.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20. The military authorities issued a proclamation to-day declaring that if attacks on Crown forces in motor cars continued "known rebels will be carried as hostages."

BEGINNING RIGHT.

Let's all begin the new year right, and make a record snow white. Let's drive our cars twelve miles an hour, and not show off their pep and power by stepping heavily on the gas and slaying people as we pass. What is the hurry, anyway? Why speed her up? We have all day to get to Punk-ton-on-the-High, where we expect to spend the night. If we'd cut out the foolish haste the present wild and wanton waste of humus, life would promptly shrink—it's worth a new year vow, I think. A more important vow this is than wearing out on drugstore fizz, or punk cigars that smell like shoes when you have deftly lit the fuse. Of course the gents who have no cars may waste their vows on hay cigars, but we who push our clanking vans should make some new and drastic plans. We're slaying thousands every year as down the turnpike we career; the dead are lying where we raced, and all because of mauling haste. What is the hurry, anyhow? It's all uncalled for, you'll allow; we have all day in which to reach the famous Bilge-town-by-the-Beach.

Now that they can never regain their old glory, the exiled Russian nobility who formerly adorned the late Tsar's court are enjoying the novelty of working for their living. There are in France hundreds of these nobles engaged in different industries, and some are actually doing manual work as navvies. Moreover, many officers who once held high rank in the Russian army are now taxi drivers in Paris.

Count Paul Ignatieff, who was a close friend of the murdered Tsar, now sells milk in Garches. His wife, who was the most beautiful woman in Petrograd, milks the cows at dawn, while the Count's second son grows mushrooms at Saint-Germain.

The most dashing cavalry officer of Russia, Colonel Skouratoff, has exchanged the sword for the hoe, and is becoming an agricultural expert. At a Paris garage another famous colonel may be seen any day in overalls.

General Nicoloff, commander of the Russian troops in France during the war, now drives a motor-trolley for a wholesale firm in Paris.

Two princes are bank clerks, and many nobles and officers have become motor mechanics. Prince Boris paints lively interior decorations for chateaux. In order to buy his outfit he had to pawn his jewels.

The Career of Quinn the Actor.

On Tuesday, January 21, 1766, James Quinn, a celebrated actor, died at seventy-three years of age, having been born in King Street, Covent Garden, London, on February 24, 1693. He was educated at Dublin, of which his grandfather had been Mayor, but from 1714 he became a famous actor in London theatres. In 1747 he was at Bath. In Somersetshire, whence he wrote briefly to John Rich, "I am at Bath; yours, James Quinn," and received the laconic answer, "Stay there, and be damned. Yours, John Rich." When George the First, Elector of Hanover, succeeded Queen Ann on the British throne, he seldom came to England, and consequently his son, who became George the Second for Britain for 33 years, could never understand the English language perfectly. George the Third, who reigned for fifty-nine years, said that he would never have been able to speak English if he had not heard Quinn the actor. In 1766 the latter visited Bath, where he was exceedingly popular with the nobility and gentry, and died there, being buried in the Abbey Church of that city. A monument was placed on the south wall of its nave, and his epitaph was composed by David Garrick, the celebrated actor, as well as author of nearly forty pieces, and who died on January 20, 1779, at sixty-two years of age. It concluded with the verse:

"The tongue that set the table in a roar,
And charmed the public ear, is heard no more."

This epitaph has been recently removed out of the public sight.

Blaming the Movies.

An epidemic of crime seems to be sweeping over all lands, accompanied with violence and disregard of human life. Many causes are said to contribute to this evil. Extravagant living while money was plenty has been followed by want and impatience to put up with meagre fare. The cheapening of life during the war, and the familiarity with violence make their contribution. Demoralizing and sensational movie pictures, depicting crime and the ease with which theft and robbery may be carried on bear some of the responsibility. The example is given from New York, where C.B. from which place comes the following press dispatch: "The influence of the movie serial is discernible in the case of a ten-year-old boy named Murray, who was set upon here Friday night by three larger boys all masked and dragged to the woods where he was tied to a tree. The little fellow remained trussed up for four hours before his cries brought assistance."

It is high time the Government of the provinces were awakening to the vitiating influence of many of the pictures being displayed.—The Wesleyan.

Fairies Do Exist.

Dainty fairies, dancing elves, and frisky gnomes have long lived in the imagination of young people, and grown-ups, too.

Now we are told, on the authority of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, that not only are fairies real, but that they can be photographed.

The novelist has been led to this conclusion by the remarkable accomplishment of two girls who, three years ago, took photographs of fairies in a Yorkshire valley. To remove any doubts as to the genuineness of the photographs, which are published in the Christmas Number of "The Strand Magazine," the original negatives were submitted to searching tests by experts.

A Belgian woman, who lost her husband in a railroad accident, received from the company $2,000 by way of compensation. Shortly after she read of a traveller getting twice as much for the loss of a leg. She went to the company and protested that the difference was unfair.

"Madam," said the official, "the two awards are perfectly fair. Four thousand dollars won't provide the man with a new leg, but for $2,000 you can easily get a new husband."
