PORT TALBOT

One of the many interesting meetings of the literary society was held in the schoolhouse on March 25. Mr. James Bobier made a first-class chairman, and Miss Lunn performed the duties of critic to perfection. The program consisted of selections by the Glee Club; phonoof selections by the Glee Clab; phonograph selections; recitations by Peter McKellar and Master Sammie Small; solo by Ernest Pearce; dancing by the Bobier children, and probably the most interesting feature of the evening next to the debate was a mock trial. Mr. Edward Newhouse acted as lawyer for Edward Newhouse acted as lawyer for the plaintiff, Harry Bobier for the defendant and Mr. James Lunn as judge. After careful consideration the jurymen decided that the plaintiff pay the costs. The debate "Resolved, That one can obtain more Knowledge from Reading than Trayelling." was supported in the affirmative by W. F. Bobier and Lorenzo Holland, while the negative was upheld by Ernest Pearce and Clarence Small. The judges, Mrs. R. Bobier, Mr. J. Lunn and Mr. J. E. McLarty, found much difficulty in giving their decision, first coming to the conclusion that it was a tie, but on looking over the points the second time found the affirmative had proyen one of their points more clearly. This being the last meeting of the season it closed by singing "Auld Laue Syne" and the National Anthem. tie, but on looking over the points the second time found the affirmative had proyen one of their points more clearly. HIS TERRIBLE EYES

Cass Could Almost Paralyze
Man With a Look.

Giant heads, bodies and brains were Webster and Cass. All the strength of New Hampshire granite was concentrated in those two sons. To look upon them made the ordinary man feel small. Wonderful eyes they possessed, and men have been known to shiver with dread when one or the other al-lowed his glance to fall upon them. Cass could look through a stranger in a way to make his brain burn and his knees knock together. One searching stare seemed to destroy all mentality and fill the victim with paralytic emo-

No man dared take liberties with Cass. In 1846 the proprietor of the National hotel in Washington was a man who so closely resembled the great senator from Michigan that he was often mistaken for him. An old friend, returning from a journey, entered tered the lobby and, seeing him lean-ing against the desk, slipped up be-hind and hit him a terrific whack on hind and hit him a terrific whack on the shoulder, saying cheerily and simultaneously: "Hello, old man! Here I am back again. How are you?" Senator Cass straightened up his six feet three and, turning upon the assailant his terrible, bloodshot eyes, almost annihilated him with a look. Not a word was spoken. That look was ample. The stranger was so "rattled" that he could not even apologize, but that he could not even apologize, but slunk dejectedly out of the hotel.

Later in the day when congress was supposed to be in session the stranger returned to the hotel to shake hands with the proprietor and tell him all about the Cass incident. Walking bravely up, he laid his hand down on his friend's shoulder and, without waiting for a greeting, surprised him with: "See here, old fellow, you got me in a deuce of a scrape this morning. Why, you know, I took old Cass for you, slapped him on the back, nearly taking off a shoulder, and the old fool looked at me as if he wanted to commit murder. The darned old lunatic, why doesn't he stay out of here? He Again the great senator from Michigan straightened up his six feet three, again he turned his bloodshot eyes, again he looked and again the victim fied. Two mistakes of that kind in one day!

CHARACTER IN WALKING.

Traits Which Are Readily Disclosed by One's Gait.

"There's a conceited man coming down the street," said the girl in the group on a corner. "How do I know? By his walk. I can tell the chief trait of any person's character by watching him or her walk. For instance, if a man walks with a heavy lift to his hips he's sure to be obstinate. If he sinks down a little on his heels he has a comfortable attitude toward life and the world in general—in fact, he's a bit That woman coming down the street now is a gossip. Any one could tell that because of her mincing, fussy gait. Indecision is the chief characteristic of that woman's character across the street. Don't you see how she swings her foot rather hesitatingly in the air before she puts it down?

"The man who walks with his knees leading is sure to be of the pious type -the disagreeably pious type, I mean. You see that old codger who is crossing the road with his stomach seeming to lead the rest of him-well, of course it is evident that feeding is his chief delight. When an intellectual man walks his head leads. That girl who sways so is self conscious. Yes, that girl going down the street has a pretty walk, gilding and quiet, but watch out for her; she is treacherous in the extreme.

"The man who puts his feet down especially solidly is heavy and somewhat stupid. That little person crossing the road with a quick, clean step is energy personified, but he has the sort of energy which has no regard for the rights or feelings of others. The girl coming out of that store has an agly streak in her nature. Don't you see how she puts her foot down unwillingly as if she were saying: I won't! I won't! I shouldn't advise any man to marry her.

"Of course I don't pretend to know thoroughly a person's character by his walk, but I do discover his predominating characteristic."

"ANOTHER OBSERVER'S" REPLY

is reprehensible, but to do so in a sinister manner, for business purposes, violates ordinary business ethics.

The role of eye-strain in civilization is not as generally recognized as it should be and I should judge that any discussion of the subject would be good taste. In addressing an academy of medicine a leading authority stated: "Without the least doubt, and weighing well what I say, I am sure that no discovery of modern medicine, except vaccination and the germ theory of disease, is of so great importance as that of eye-strain. Directly and indirectly this functional disease is the cause of more suffering than all the organic diseases combined." It is estimated that at least 25 per cent. of modern civilized people are to-day suffering from the coular and systemic effects of eye-strain and its relief is accomplished by the art of refraction the proper use of and compounding of spherical, cylindrical and prismatic lenses, and his art to be of any value is only so when absolute accuracy in it is obtained, an accuracy that requires exceptional skill and training."

Surely such an art is a fit and proper subject for regulation by the provincial legislature, both in the interest of optometrists by excluding "fakes" and incompetents as well as in the public interest. Yet, when attempts have been made in this direction have not you "Observer" and the medical associations given it your uncompromising hostility ond successful opposition? You hypocritically appeal to the Ordinals.

and the medical associations given it your uncompromising hostility and successful opposition? You hypocritically appeal to the emicials of the Provincial Board of Health, knowing full well that the solution is not with them. In this connection let me quote abother great medical authority:

"Beware of officialdom in all its works and ways and in any walk of life, but especially in medical science. In ophthe imology to-day it will often know nothing of the great terth.
The blindness that is blindness that the success."

Honor bright, "Observer," have you not been "caught with the goods." Is not your position, viewed from every standpoint, untenable? Its sole object exposed? It is as logical as that of a man guilty of murdering his parents and when asked by the judge if he had anything to say, replied, "Please, mylord, i am an orphan."
