Should They Be Taxed?

An Interesting Debate at the Catholic Club.

Strong Arguments for and Against Assessing Bachelors.

Laws Ancient and Modern Cited on Both Sides-A Decision Against the Tax-Pleasant Programme.

At the Catholic Club last evening a large audience listened to a most entertaining debate on the interesting subject "Resolved, that Government should levy a tax on bachelors."

Messrs. T. J. Murphy and James Ward appeared for the affirmative, while P. McPhillips and J. Connors upheld the negative. Mr. H. Beaton, the vice-president of the club, occupied the chair.

Mr. Murphy, in opening the debate, stated that he was going to treat the subject seriously, as it was one which was at the moment occupying the minds of statesmen all over the world. It was not necessary for the affirmative to state what the amount of the late Robert Facey, of Harrietsville, tax should be, or what the Government should do with the proceeds of the ship. The Masons and Oddfellows turned out in large numbers. The ceremony of the Oddfellows at the grave was most efficiently conducted by Deputy Grand Master Young, of Thamesford, assisted by the noble grand of Harrietsville Lodge.

In this latter connection the case of the Argentine Republic was quoted as an instance of modern state which had imposed a tax upon bachelors. Mr. Murphy went on to quote Scriptural sanction for imposing such a tax, and concluded by stating that bachelors should be tax-ed, if for no other reason, because they had not followed the example of their parents. He caused considerable laughter by narrating the story of Micke-Mouth Mary, the ugliest woman in

Mr. McPhillips, leader of the negasupposed to be unpopular with the fair sex, he was willing to leave the decision of the debate to the single ladies present, so confident was he in the soundness of his cause. He then proceeded to deal in detail with the arguments advanced by the leader of the affirmaplaced upon bachelordom. These had been swept from the codes when the light of reason penetrated the craniums of the law-makers. There was er upon. only one case in modern times in England where a tax had been imposed upon bachelors, and that was when in 1695, William III. had imposed such a tax for a time to meet the pressing needs of a war with France. The tax was afterwards removed. With regard to the action of the Government of the Argentine Republic, he did not and equity by these semi-civilized peoples under the equator. The tax further was an arbitrary one, and hence belonged to the list condemned by Adam Smith and John Stuart Mil The affirmative were assuming that bachelors under the existing laws wer

The speaker concluded by quoting extensively from Bacon in defense of the nobility and joys of the bachelor state. The words "No man can four counties, who was married be-cause the groom had no other option love and be wise," he said, contained a great deal of sound truth. Mr. James Ward spoke briefly in be-half of the affirmative, devoting his attention chiefly to the "Too poor t marry" excuse. He argued that if a young man would marry he would save noney, and could thus support a wife and if he were taxed there would be an inducement for him to marry. Mr. J. Connors then took up the cudgels for the negative, and quoted Scripture extensively in defense of bachelorhood. The words of St. Paul 'He that is unmarried careth for the marrieth shall have tribulations of no cognizance of the individual apart the flesh," were as true today as when from the state, penalties had been they were written.
