Charles Eanford's Company.

"Julius Casar," Shakespeare's greatest tragedy, will be preduced at the Grand tomorrow night by Charles Hanford's company, which comes highly commended by the press of New York, Philadelphia and other leading cities. Mr. Hanford will appear as Marc Antony, and will be supported by Mr. Bennett Matlack and Mr. E. R. Spencer as Brutus and Cassius respectively. The rest of the support is excellent. Of Mr. Hanford's presentation of Antony the Philadelphia Times says: His is a performance not to be missed and long to be remembered. His dominating passion in the control of the mob and the skill with which he played upon the passions of the Romen multitude in the funeral scene was something that has not been equaled in this generation. Even Mr. Hanford's owe previous performances of the part were only a promise of what he achieves now that he is free to make Antony dominate the play, He starts his career as a star with brilliant prospects, which were emphasized last night by a hearty recall, consequent upon his grief over the death of Cagar, as well as after the funeral scene.

THE IMMORTAL SOUL.

Victor Huge's Memorable Imprompts
Reply to the Athelsts. [From Donahoe's Magazine for January.]

iFrom Donahoe's Magazine for January.]
At a dinner given to Victor Hugo in Paris some years ago, says L'Univers, he delivered an impromptu address, in which he gave expression to his faith in the infinite and in the soul's immortality. His friend, Houssaye, who was present, says:

"Hugo at that time was a man of steel, with no sign of old age about him, but with all the agility, the suppleness, the ease and grace of his best years." He was contradicting the Atheists, and his friend says, "his face was bright with the heavenly halo and his eyes shone like burning coals."

"There are no occult forces,' he said; there are only luminous forces. Occult force is chaos; the luminous force is God. Man is an infinite little copy of God; this is glory enough for rean. I am a man, an invisible atom, a drop in the ocean, a grain

That a straight, honest business always turns out best in the end. A little money is sometimes made on catchy schemes and doubtful enterprises, but a permanent business can be built up and maintained only by square dealing. The process of getting rich is sometimes a little slow, but the result is usually gratifying. We have aimed for twelve years to give the best value, and we can point with pride to the class of customers we satisfy.
