There was another small market this morning, all the farmers reporting that the roads are in a very bade condition for driving, pitch-holes being everywhere, and are now very deep. Those who did brave the dangers of the road, however, were repaid by a very brisk market, all most everything offered going off well, Hay was probably the fattures of the roads, there was a very good supply offered. There was quite a decided advance in price, too, a goodly number of loads selling for $15.0, while some of the farmers were holding out for even higher prices. ALLEGED MAD DOG IN EAST LONDON

Bulldog Attacked a Pet Foxterrier With Dire Results tor Latter.

Another alleged case of "mad dog" was reported in the East End yesterday afternoon, when a bulldog attacked a pet belonging to Mr. William Wakeling, of 24 Campbell street. Mr. Wakeling's dog, which is a pet of the children, was muzzled at the time, and was unable to protect himself, a part of one ear being bitten off and his leg lacerated. The bulldog was captured by Wakeling and turned over to the po-

The authorities state that the bulldog was bitten by the canine killed on Talbot street yesterday afternoon, or. at least, he may have been. Now it is figured out that if the Talbot street dog was really mad, he may have bitten the East End bulldog, and if the bulldog is mad, there is a possibility that Mr. Wakeling's pet may develop
