ST JOHNS, Nfid., Jan. 25.—All movement of trains and street cars has been stopped by a blizzard, which has raged in Newfoundland for the last 24 hours, piling up huge drifts. The intense cold has resulted in the closing of many harbors.

The Furness liner Digby, which was booked to sail for Liverpool yesterday, was still in port tonight. The coastal mail steamer Prospero was icebound in Notre Dame Bay, with no prospect of getting free for several days.

The steamer Stella Maris, caught in the ice at Bonne Bay, was held so fast that it was believed there was little chance of her being able to get out before spring.

HAMILTON, Jan. 25 .- There is nuch mystery over the action of the Norlina authorities with regard to appeal will be asked and granted. the Matthew Bullock case. Though they wired the local police department over two weeks ago, asking for the arrest of Bullock, they have taken no steps to extradite him. Local colored people, who are following the case with much interest, state this morning that they have information from a lawyer in Washington, who is being retained to watch developments there, that so far the Norlina authorities have not even Washington to secure Bullock's extradition from Canada.

Trustees' Association Debates Question Two Hours At St. Thomas Convention.

DUNWICH TAKES ACTION

Nine Representatives of the Township Favor Calling of Meeting Soon.

[Special to London Advertiser.] ST. THOMAS, Jan. 25 .- The consolidated rural school, at least for children beyond the fourth form, will be a reality in Elgin County in the not distant future, if the beliefs and opinions expressed at the 11th annual convention of Elgin County School Trustees' Association, in session in this city, can be taken as a

Two hundred delegates gathered in the County Building Wednesday applauded time and again when suggestions were made that the rural districts must take some steps, independent of the urban districts, to care for the children still under 16 years old, who had graduated from the public schools. The step had become imperative, now that the adolescent act had; een enforced, it was declared.

That the interest in consolidated schools, which not long ago were but dreams, had become awakened in all parts of the county, was evinced by the eager way in which delegates upon an opportunity of discussing the problem. The question was to be dealt with only in address by D. B. McPherson, secretary of the association, but at the conclusion of his address the problem was debated for almost two hours, and definite action in one township at least was

Mr. McPherson did not declare himself either for or against consolidated schools or classes. After telling them of observation made during a tour of inspection among the consolidated schools of Parry Sound district, he stated that such schools might be all right where they were absolutely necessary. He favored rather, if any measures were necessary, the consolidating of a fifth class in conjunction with an already existing public school.

If one school section could not provide enough students to fill such a class, he would consolidate two or perhaps five. He certainly would not scrap the schools already in existence for the sake of consolidated

John Burton of Fingal spoke strongly in favor of some action "We are face to face with the problem of having the doors of the collegiate institute shut in the faces of our children," he said. "We have before us the question of who is to build the extra room to care for our adolescent children. Criticizes Speaker. "Consolidation is either wrong of it's the next step. Mr. McPherson in favor of them or against them Consolidation to me seems to be the only step we can take since the introduction of the adolescent act. "I believe it will be utterly impossible to leave the existing school as suggested by Mr. McPherson. It would be utterly undemocratic unless we serve all communities alike and give every child, no matter where he or she lives an equal opportunity with the others of attending continu ation classes."

Rev. Mr. Pollock of Dutton and Mr. Ferguson spoke strongly in favor of providing consolidated classes for rural students.

At a suggestion from Mr. Pollock Mr. McPherson asked all trustees from Dunwich Township if they were willing to meet at an early date to discuss the problem in relation to that township. When nine signified themselves in favor of such a meet ing he stated that one would be called in the near future.

Mr. Ferguson urged that if consolicated schools were established they should be made to fit in with the plan of the provincial government, for there was no doubt that in time the whole province would be put under a consolidated system.

Blames Schools For Crime
J. A. McRae of Aldborough, president of the association, gave a splen-did address on "What Is the Place of the School Among the Various Conditions and Tendencies of Today? He urged that the schools should in-culcate in the minds of the children respect for law and order, the cardinal virtues of personal honesty and integrity, high ideals of character, and proper ideas of values, and should teach the dignity of labor.

He believed that because the schools were failing in their duties in regards to these all important things, lawlessness and crime was on the increase. Professor G. Quantz of London spoke on the value of musical training in public schools, and gave several illustrations of its worth. In the evening Dr. Falconer, president of Toronto University, gave a lecture in the Engineers' Hall.
