SABBATH SILENCE WAS NOT BROKEN

Montreal Gazette: When the special train carrying Gaby Deslys, the French dancer, pulled into the Union Station at Toronto on Sunday there was a large crowd of citizens on hand to welcome her, and they were highly delighted when she graciously acknowledged their devotion by bowing and smiling. The newspaper reporting the incident states that had it not been Sunday the little star possibly would have been received with cheers. It is gratifying to note that the Sabbath silence was not broken by the Toronto admirers of the worldly person of the twinkling feet. But perhaps the quiet gapers were not citizens, but just profane persons from Quebec, or Montreal, or London, Eng., or New York, seeking diversion on Toronto's severe day.
