GASPE
The Government steamer "Sable" arrived in port on Sunday, and left Monday morning.
The Russian barquentine "Pittan" sailed into port on Saturday: she was loaded with salt for Messrs. William Fruing & Co., Limited. The Pittan had previously unloaded half her cargo at Fruing's branch establishment—Lameque. She commenced discharging the remaining half at Gaspe on the third inst. The barquentine took forty nine days, to traverse from Cadiz to Lameque.

All business houses were closed on Thursday; but Dominion Day passed without any expressive excitement; owing to war conditions.
The most fashionable resort on the Gaspe coast, Baker's Hotel, has been greatly improved by Mr. Troy, architect. The guests have been very successful at the salmon pools, quite a large amount having been netted.
The Ladies' Red Cross Society held their usual weekly meeting, at Mrs. C. S. LeBoutillier's residence.

Pte. A. LeGrand left Monday, en route to join his regiment, the Mounted Rifles. All his friends were at the station wishing him bon voyage.

It is rumored that a government engineer, who has been taking construction measures at Douglastown, with a view to building a bridge. If the above statement proves correct, it will be greatly appreciated by the Douglastown community.

The salmon season will soon be closing, and we are very pleased to state, the fishing has been excellent at all the principal fishing stations on the coast.

Captain Charles Lindsay of the motor launch "Swastika," and a party of friends, including Misses Stella and Marion LeBoutillier, also Mr. Percy Hyman. The launch left Gaspe Basin at 8 p. m. Saturday, bound on a cruise up the North West river. Upon reaching the bridge which is situated high up the river, the Captain decided to return; but owing to the scanty knowledge the Captain possessed regarding the river, the "Swastika" was grounded. This was a very wet ground. The launch was stuck at 9 p. m. The shoal, and after under the crew, who were say, the Captain, the motor launch "Swastika" was finally set afloat. This proceeding ended at 12 p. m.

The water pump now refused to work, as it was choked with mud, which therefore made the engine useless. The crew were obliged to paddle the craft; and were fortunate in reaching the Shepherd or Morse Co's wharf without mishap. Captain Lindsay was now at a loss as to what course he should pursue, but good-luck favored the Captain, in the form of another motor-boat belonging to Mr. C. Rhodenhiser, who at once towed the "Swastika" into harbor. He was thanked profusely by all, including the Captain. The happy party thereupon dispersed, and returned to their various homes. The above episode terminated at about 2 a. m. Sunday. It was rumored that Captain Lindsay, of the "Swastika" had been affected by seasickness, but had recovered immediately he set foot upon terra-firma. The latter part of the above journey, was rather serious, as the launch was taking water; the crew had to bail her out continually. Captain Charles Lindsay is to be congratulated on his narrow escape; because the consequences might have been exceedingly serious.
