THE FATAL SUBTERFUCE. We must go back in our story a few eeks. Ashurst, the residence of the shley family, was four miles from Arden lace. The house, an old-fashioned brick building, had been erected more than a hundred years ago. It was spacious, and venerable in its appearance; externally it presented many pointed gables, and internally the arrangement of the rooms would have pussled a stranger effectually as the labyrinth of Crete steelf. Such queer little out of the way places as were contrived in the intricate arrangement of the spartments would have confounded a modern architect, with his ideas of simplicity and convenience.

Knowing this, it was marvellous that his son should have ventured to commit the same fault; but from the first, Ashley had never intended to acknowledge the portionless Eva as his wife. Soe Manufacturers of Miller's Patent Shifting Rail. These Shifting Tops have no rival, as a glance at the cut will show for itself; it is so simple It requires only one person to take it off or put it on, and when off no one would think a Top had been on, as no unsightly ends are sticking out. When the Top is on it is as firm as a rock. It cap be put on any carriage in use. Persons ordering Buggles or Canopy Top Carriages should see that they have this Rail, as it will be greatly to their interest.

These Tops were awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition in October, 1880
