Charles Vezin in South Africa. Mr. Vezin at one time acted as the German consul at Philadelphis. He succeeded his sather in the importing business, but subsequently failed. During the bankruptcy proceedings it was discovered that he had unlawfully disposed of bonds and other securities which he held as trustee. As soon as he found that his transactions must come to light Mr. Vezin field to South America. On February 12 he joined a party of boon companions at Port Elizabeth and at a late hour of the night started alone for his home. The next day he was missing, and on search being made his body without marks of violence, was found in a well.
