concerning the amendments to the constitutions and also one proposing that the date of the annual convention be changed from that of Easter Monday, which will be under consideration at this morning's session. The majority of the business in the afternoon dealt with organization work and protective methods to be urged for the benefit of the Province of Ontario, and the question of the money came up at the evening meeting. It was stated that funds were urgently needed and it was proposed by W. Roberts of Hamilton that the fees be raised from the present twenty-five cents per month to one dollar, but the motion was lost. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, T. R. DeGeer, Toronto; first vice-president, J. Wilson Toronto; second vice-president, W. Slack, Merivale, Ont; third vice-president, W. Roberts, Hamilton; secretary, M. S. Donoghue, Peterboro; treasurer, J. Gardner, Brantford; provincial organizer, G. Church, Hamilton. The office of district organizer was not filled, but was left to the executive board to deal with. Hamilton was chosen as the place for next year's convention, while the annual outing day for Ontario is to be held in St. Catharines in August.

The Annual Banquet.

Pollowing the evening session, the annual banquet was held at the Carls-Rite Hotel, at which a number of ladies were present. The chair was taken by M. S. Donoghue, and the toasts of "The King," "The Master Horseshoers of Ontario," "The Ladies," "Our Guests," "The Boys at the Front," and "The Commercial Interests," were duly honored.

Black suspicion, entailing the destruction of matrimonial happiness, was forcibly depicted in the feature film, "His Brother's Wife," at the Strand Theatre yesterday. It is one of those human plays that grip as they unfold a story of such deep af-fection by the wife for her husband, that she would even pay the "supreme price" in order to save his life from the ravages of disease. Ethel Clayton as Helen Barton, perfectly pontrays her hard role and Carlyle Blackwell as the "other brother" acts equally good. Paul Mc-Allister as Richard Barton, performed this part with splendid effect. "The Mutual Weekly" was exceptionally interesting this week, and the comedy "A Lisle Bank." full of excellent fun. The novel film "Universal Screen Magazine" completed a well arranged bill. It showed those present the inside of a munition factory to the fine art of perfect manicuring.

Musical Comedy at Grand Opera Capacity Audience for Initial Per-House Causes Much Laughter

Stop! Look! Listen! and when you have done all this for the two and a half hours or so that it takes to run thru this show at the Grand Opera Houce, this week, you come has been well spent, and that this much-talked-of musical comedy is a very amusing thing indeed. The fun does not originate in the plot of the piece, because there is not any. The audience is kept so busy listering to quite bright jokes and to good songs quite nicely sung that no one misses the plot. In fact, it would be impossible to crowd a plot in on the present performance and still get it thru in the time limit. The central figure of the show is Leona. Thompson, who, as Violetta, an ambitious chorus girl with a future, sings and dances her way into favor very rapidly. Winifred Anglin, as Mary Singer, and Mary Ambrose, as Ma Singer, her mother, are responsible for much of the comedy. Among the men. Messrs. Elton and Allen are decidedly a feature. The offering of his company, "An April Shower," is a pretty story with the human touch, in which Carr as Jacob Gloodman sacrifices himself for his niece just at the moment when the summit of happiness seems within his own grasp. In response to several curtain calls he gave a short speech, and a bit of English pessimism entitled "Life."

Described as an allegorical playlet a clever company gives "Rich Girl," a clever company gives "Rich Girl," Poor Girl," at Loew's Theatre this week, which is easily the headliner. The story deals with the respective merits of a poor or a rich girl, for a wife. The latter offers her wealth and a position in society, and a "career" for the man she would marry, while her poorer sister offers love. A sample is given of what life would be with each, and in the end the man decided that he will remain single. vivacious comedienne is Alice Hanson and her catchy songs and skits were received with continuous laughter, Leo and May Jackson, trick cyclists, give and May Jackson, trick cyclists, give some entirely new stunts. In the Revue de Vogue an exceedingly clever company of eight gives the latest songs, dances and some piano music. "An Every-day Occurrence," in which some smart repartee is featurable of the company of the street of th ed, is given by Forrester and Lloyd, and Stetson and Huber give the latest Broadway hits in comedy, dancing and singing numbers. The Lorettos, a trio of instrumentalists, offer some finished selections on the xylophone.

NOVELTIES INTRODUCED IN SHOW AT THE STAR

All of the foremost moving picture stars are burlesqued by the members of the "1917 Revue," which opened before a big holiday crowd at the Star Theatre Monday afternoon. This is a new idea, and proved to be a hit with the audience. The show features Harry (Hickey) Le Van and Claire Devine, Le Van imitates Charlie Chaplin in the first act, and, assisted by Miss Devine, puts over a good pianolog.
Claire Devine is featured in the singing side of the production, and is closely followed for first honors by the lively soubrette, Dody Morris.

Many catchy songs are rendered by the company and the chorus, which consists of a large number of elever singing and dancing girls.

SPECTACULAR DRAMA

RETURNS TO ALEXANDRA formance of Richard W.

Tully's "The Flame."

With its gorgeous scenic effects, weird music, exotic setting, and thrilling plot, Richard Walton Tully's spectacular drama, "The Flame," commenced a return engagement at the Royal Alexandra last night. Tho there is much of the melodrama about the well-known playwright's latest work and altho the theme is not one calculated to appeal to every class of theatregoer, an indefinable atmosphere is created that holds the audience spellbound until the final curtain. Climax after olimax is reached in this play which has to do with Indians, Hawailans and southern negroes, and it is safe to say that had the producer thought a little more of plot instead of denounements it would find greater favor. The story centres around two young people who are trying to gain their fortunes in a Latin republic, bordering on the Caribbean Sea. About them are grouped bandits, rebellious soldiers, dishonest officials, voodoo worshippers, and believers in the power of the shrine of the sun and the moon.

For scenic effects, however, it would be hard to find anything superior to those achieved in "The Flame." In each act the settings are remarkable, but the audience is left wondering at the conclusion of a scene in a southern jungle, in which a devastating hurricane sweeps all before it.

The numerous characters are well portrayed by a capable cast. June the power of the shrine of the sun men. Messrs. Elton and Allen are decidedly a feature. Their step dancing, in a black-face scene, is both novel and clever. George M. Smith, as Gideon Gray, a tired business man, with a penchant for chours girls, is another bright spot. Al. B. White, as the ever-present press agent, and Bobby Harrington, as the wealthy young butterfly, both put their several good songs across with excellent voice and much spirit. The chorus is a large one, much blessed with good looks, a fine array of costumes, and unusually well-balanced voices. "Stop! Look! Listen!" is well mounted, there being several very effective sets of scenery. One or two of them are done in a futuristic style, that gives an added touch of novelty to the production.

The more noteworthy—songs and numbers are: "I Love to Dance," sung by Violetta and chorus; "Love a Plano," by Abel Connor; "When I'm Out With You," by Violetta, Parke and ensemble, and "Oozums" ittle Snookums Is Oo," by Ma Singer and Gideon Gray. An interesting specialty is a ragtime melodrama, by principals and chorus.

Lieutenant-General Sir Sam Hughes ame in from Lindsay last evening to formally open the "Toronto Household Exhibition" at the Arena, and is staying over for the day in Toronto. Interviewed by a reporter for The World at the King Edward Hotel last evening. Sir Sam had little to add to what he had already sago, I will be ready in the future, as in the past, to assist the United States into the war.

"As I telegraphed President Wilson a tew days ago, I will be ready in the future, as in the past, to assist the United States Government gratuitously with my advice and counsel. I am going to New York next week, but that is a private matter. I am not going in any official capacity."

Sir Sam had little comment to make upon a report that parliament might be adjourned for another month to await the return of the prime minister from Engiand. The adjournment, he said, would suit his personal convenience, but he had no idea as to the probability of an election in the near future, he said that, judging from what many prominent Liberals were saying, it assemed likely to come off before long. The Liberal-Conservative convention for twictoria and Haliburton has been called for the 28th inst.

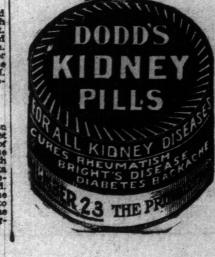

"They can turn me out if they want to," said the general, smilingly, "but I don't think they are likely to do so."

"As a matter of fact, it is well understood that the convention will renominate Sir Sam by acclamation.
