A Marriage Matter of Interest
—Gardener's Claim to Lands and Title — Royal

Every woman wedding, or wedded to an Indian, should take note of the decision just rendered by the Italian court of fina sppeal. As everyone is aware, divorce does not exist in Italy, and the dozen or so of bills that have been presented to the national legislature, with the object of placing a divorce law on the statute book, have been defeated by overwhelm-of placing a divorce law on the statue book, have been defeated by overwhelming majorities.

The consequence has been that whenever an Italian subject desired release from matrimonial bonds, either a legal demicile, or else naturalization, would be sought and obtained in France, Switzerland or Germany, where divorce is easy. After having obtained in one of those countries a decree of divorce, the parties returned to Italy, and resumed their Italian domicile or nationality, as the case might be. Moreover, they thereupon contracted other marriages in Italy. This has been done without let or hindrance hitherto; but henceforth it will be impossible. Some time ago Count Carlo Guicciardini, quarrielled violently with his wife, a daughter of Senator Poreno, envoy of the Argentine Republic at Rome, owing to her objection to his attentions to the excrown-Princess of Saxony. Finally they made up their minds to secure naturalization in Hungary, and immediately afterwards a Hungarian divorce. He thereupon returned to Italy and, wishing to recover possession of his child, which had been awarded to him by the Hungarian tribunal but had been retained by the mother, who

On Making Complaints to the Italian courts to enforce the Hungarian decree.

The matter has been carried from one court to another in Italy, until it has been finally decided that the Hungarian divorce has no validity in Italy, since Count Carlo Guicciardini manifestly secured his decree at Budapest for the purpose of evading the marriage laws of Italy. The effect of this is to prevent either Count Carlo or the Countess from marrying again while, if the count wishes to have the custody of his child, he has only to invoke the services of the police for its seizure, unless his wife takes time by the forelock and obtains a legal separation and the award SY RUTH CAMERON

HE other day in a restaurant I saw a young girl haughtily summon the waitrees and tell her to take back an order of ice cream in which, according to the customer, there was a taste of salt.

The waitrees inquired if the customer would like something in its place; and being told with some asperity that she had no time to try again, meekly bore away the ice cream and changed the charge on the customer's slip.

After the waitress had disappeared, I heard the girl say to her companion: "It wasn't very salty, but it didn't taste the way I thought it would, and there was a little salt in one corner, so I thought that would be a good way to get rid of it."

I wonder who was blamed for the salt in that ice cream? Somebody was, of course. Complaints like that aren't usually left in mid-air. The restaurant lost ten cents by that girl's decree, and some one was probably held responsible for that loss.

When a customer of a shop or a patron of some public decree, and some one was probably held responsible for that loss.

When a customer of a shop or a patron of some public utility launches a complaint into the air and receives the assurance of some obsequious clerk that the matter shall be attended to, she feels a sense of relief at having vented her righteous indignation. But I don't believe she visualizes to herself the fact that some real concrete person is going to receive a sharp rebulse or perhaps even more than that as a result of her complaint.

The girl who used a speck of salt as a pretext for getting rid of some cream that she did not fancy is an exaggerated example of the complainant. There are not many plain of the goods or service they receive, on any legitimate ground. "Clothed in a little brief authority," I always think when I see any such person enjoying the opportunity to be domineering and supercilious to some clerk whose business it is to receive complaints.

services of the police for its seizure, unless his wife takes time by the forelock and obtains a legal separation and the award of the child, which is all that the Italian tribunals are competent to grant.

There are a large number of well known Italians who will be affected by this rubing of the supreme court, among them the former Countess Arturo Fabbricotti who, on the strength of a divorce obtained in France from her Florentine husband, married Baron Aliotti, formerly attached to the Italian embassy at Washington, and now Italian minister to Mexico.

Happily, Countess Arturo Fabbricotti has remained in Europe, and under the name of "Baroness Aliotti," has been staying with Lord and Lady Sackville at Knole Park, in Kent, for Mexican society and the foreign diplomatic corps in Mexico might justify the ruling of the Italian court, refuse to receive her as the lawful wife of the Italian Envoy. Every woman therefore should take thoroughly to heart the fact that henceforth when she weds an Italian, it is for life, and as she becomes Italian by her marriage, there can be no dissolution of the bond save by death.

It may be asked why this momentous therefore should take thoroughly to heart the fact that henceforth when she weds an Italian, it is for life, and as she becomes Italian by her marriage, there can be no dissolution of the bond save by death.

It may be asked why this momentous decision has only just been rendered. The fact of the matter is that the Italian supperse courts have never been called upon to determine the validity of divorces obtained abroad by Italian citizens, until appealed to by Count Carlo Guicciardini. Moreover, the count's appeal, on account of the slowness of judicial procedure in Italy, has taken several years to reach the supreme court.

to be the sixth Marquis of Waterford, as announced in cable dispatches, it is necessary to explain that the fifth marquis, elder brother of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, and of Lord Marcus Beresford, was twice married. In 1871, while still a bachelor, and serving in the army as captain of the 1st Life Guard Regiment, he eloped with the wife of a younger son of the first Lord Vivian, Captain the Hon. John Vivian of the 11th Hussars, afterwards member of parliament for Truro, and permanent under secretary of state for war. She was a daughter of Major George Rowley.

The elopement was followed, after some delay, by a suit for divorce brought by Captain Vivian, who named Lord Waterford as co-respondent. As soon as the decree was made absolute Lord 'aterford married the former Mrs. Vivian and while Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S. writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ail ment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train Mcdicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that' I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bewels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box.

An old north-country farmer visiting the London Horse Show put up at one of the big hotels. He had barely turned in on the first night when the Buttons rushed into the room and switched on the electric light, exclaiming:—"Make haste, sir. Get up. The hotel is on fire." The old man slowly raised himself on one elbow, and fixing the boy with a determined look, remarked—"Mind ye, if I do, I winna pay for the bed."
