Globe's question for themselves, in their own way, have fled to the United States within the last few months to find there the employment they could not find in St. John. To tell these thousands, or the thousands who are still in the city but who have almost made up their minds to go away if they can raise money enough to take them, that they should stay where they are, bear calamity with fortitude, even while their wives and children are hungry, confront their perils with courage, and face the future with hope, would be a but those who always told the people the wishes us, that the present depression of out every cent of the revenue thus obtained in keeping the harbor in repair. He suggested that the Government undertake the keeping of the harbor at Port Stanley in good condition and the abolition of this exorbitant toll. He considered it an outrage that the coal dealers should have to pay such fees.

Mr. John Marshall suggested that all citizens having grievances should lay them before a committee in writing, and these grievances might either be considered by Hon. Mr. Tilley, or be sent to the proper authorities.

After some further discussion: low price of deals, and low rates of Sixteen gentlemen attended the posting and gentlemen attended the meeting, and the Mayor presided. After the chair-misgovernment and bad legislation all the man had explained the object of the evils from which this Province now suffers, Mr C P. Smith expressed his regret that more manufacturers were not present. He was in hopes that this class sent. He was in hopes that this class could increase the price of lumber in the would be on hand in large numbers as he understood many of them were dissatisfied with the new tariff. Mr. Bowman said there was one thing that demanded speedy attention.

This was the matter of coal. London was such a distance from Canadian coal of lumber and the low rate of freights, was such a distance from Canadian coal mines that it did not pay them to pay the freight from there to here. They were compelled, therefore, to purchase American coal. This they brought in by way of Port Stanley, where they had to pay 20 cents per ton for harbor toll, in addition to the 50 cents duty. This excessive harbor toll placed London coal merchants, and consequently coal consumers, at a disadvantage. The G. W. R. Co. charge this 20 cents toll at Port Stanley, but are compelled to lay out every cent of the revenue thus obtained in keeping the harbor in repair. After some further discussion:—
Mr. Carling thought they might get the Finance Minister to meet all those who had complaints either in the forenon or afternoon of Monday. It might be more useful than visiting the manufactories. anufactories.

The chairman suggested that a list freights, that so many of our factories are be drawn up of the places the hon. now partly or wholly idle, and so many gentleman should visit. One of a kind of our wholesale houses are embarrassed? would be thought be sufficient. When on his rounds the people might state their grievances.

How is all this to be changed? Courage, and fortitude, and hope, all excellent in their grievances.

Mr. Alexander Johnson moved that the President, Mr. I Waterman, His Worship Mayor Lewis and Hon. John Carling be a committee to receive Hon. Mr. Tilley.

The name of Mr. Marshall was also mentioned, but that gentleman courteously declined, giving it as a reason that he thought the committee should be composed of Hon. Mr. Tilley's political friends, and as everyone knew he was opposed to the new tariff. He was opposed to the new tariff. He thought he had good cause for his opposition when some of his raw material was taxed as high as 52 per cent.

Mr. George Birrell thought that the Conservative association should be the ones to receive the hon. gentieman. which we now regularly receive would ones to receive the hon. gentieman.

The showing around, however, could be done by a committee of citizens.

Here legislation would be of use; here a sound commercial policy, if it could not improve the price of our staples in not improve the price of our staples in Mr. Smith moved that the committee to receive the hon. gentleman be composed of Mayor Lewis, Mr. Carling, and Messrs.
