WHOSE CHOICE?

Some faces are supinely fair, Some sparkling in their splendor; Some are demure and debonair, And some divinely tender,

Some win us with one fatal glance, From eyes too brightly beaming. Some smile that smile that brings a trance, Tili life is lost in dreaming.

Some flit before us, sweet and gay, To fill our hearts with laughter; Then fade as fancies fade away, And leave no achings after.

And wone some faces, sorrow-kissed,
When holiest thoughts are thronging,
Come back, come always in that midst
Of everlasting longing.

So faces come and faces go;
Some make existence sweeter;
And some, they make life sad, we know,
Yet being sad, completer. Until one face comes up at last

(Heaven knows each heart; don't doubt it). The Future fades, the Past is past! We ask not if men call her sweet.

We ask, we passionately entrea "Will you be mine for ever?" -Wilfred Woollam, B. A., in Cassell's Family

Magazine. THE BABY'S THINGS.

Just as he left it—softly pressed—
We'l put the little crib away;
The pillow needs no smoothing now—
The baby went from home zoday.
We may not watch his sleep tonight;
Oh, loving angels! guard his bed,
And stars, look down with kindly eyes,
Where rests the downy baby head!

Take, tender hands, and fold from sight The little garments, love has wrought, And fashioned with such dainty care And skill, the baby's coming brought.
Will wear them now, ah, never more!
Death clothed him in such pure array, We cast aside the garb of earth

When he went forth from home today. His carriage! It is useless, too. He needs it not where he has gone, For God's own hand will lead him safe, And angel pinions bear him on; And yet, because it held him once, And soothed him in his earthly stay, We'll keep it, for the baby's sake,
Whose going broke our hearts today.

The scattered play-things gather up— The little rattle where it fell The little rattle where it fell
From out his hand; the headless horse;
The woolly dog he lov'd so well.
The baby's things—such trifles once!
Ah! could I see, asleep, at play,
The little one; how fair would seem
The dreary home he left today!

-Adelaide Preston, in Good Housekeeping. THE IMPOSSIBLE.

Man cannot draw water from an empty well, Nor trace the stories that gossips tell, Nor gather the sounds of a pealing bell,

Man never can stop the billow's roar, Nor change the winds till they blow no m Nor drive true love from a maiden's door,

Man cannot o ertake a fleeting lie, Change his wheat to a field of rye, Nor call back years that have long gone by,

Man cannot a cruel word recall, Fetter a thought, be it great or small, Nor honey extract from a drop of gall. Man never can bribe old Father Time, Gain the peak that he cannot climb, Nor trust the hand that hath done a crime,

Man never can backward turn the tide, Nor count the stars that are scattered wide, Nor find in a fool a trusty guide.

Man cannot reap food from worthless seed, Rely for strength on a broken read, Nor gain a heart be hath caused to bleed, Man never can hope true peace to win, Pleasure without and joy within, Living a thoughtless life of sin.

GREEN SLEEVES. Green leaves will come again,
Green leaves will come again,
Though the yellow leaves are falling
And the year is en its wane:—
But Green Sleeves, with her tender eyes,
Tahali not sea again

I shall not see again. And the birds that in the orchard
Were wont to build and sing,
Will come with the earliest whisper
Of the zephyrs of the spring:—
But Green Sleeves!—In the orchard
I shall not hear her sing.

I shall hear the pleasant murmu Of the brook 'swixt banks of fern, And the tinkle, tinkle of the bells As home the cattle turn: -But Green Sleeves, O Green Sleeves!

Green Sleeves! Green Sleeves!

My heart is full of pain,
And sometimes at a thought of you
My tears fall down like rain!

For Green Sleeves! Green Sleeves!

We shall not meet again.

H. L. SPENCEE,

ILL-STARRED.

Oh, prayers and sympathetic tears,
For each and every ill-starred knight,
For whom ring no victorious cheers;
For those who, early in the fight,
Saw daylight turning into night
And yielded up to Fate their spears.

The dented shield, the pierced cuirass, Sad story is it that they tell Of brave young knights whose hopes, alas i Bore meagre fruit, who fighting fell Before the foes they could not quell; Who found no wine within the glass,

For some there are but ill equipped
To face the world; some weak of will
And some faint-hearted, feeble-lipped.
Fit but the lowest posts to fill,
Soon shivering with the coward's chill,
And of the armor courage stripped.

O ye 'gainst whom the fates are set,
E'en though you've failed on every field
To gain fair honor's banneret,
Let high above be held each shield,
Each one with purpose strong annealed,
And each shall win a victory yet,
— Will Meredith Nicholson.

THE WIND. I saw you toss the kites on high
And blow the birds about the sky;
And all around I heard you pass,
Like ladies' skirts across the grass—
O wind, a-blowing all day long,
O wind, that sings so loud a song!

I saw the different things you did,
But always you yourself you hid;
I felt you push, I heard you call,
I could not see yourself at all—
O wind, a-blowing all day long,
O wind, that sings so loud a song !

The harvest fields lie bleak and brown, Beneath the winter snows; There is no breath of violet, No fragrance of the rose; Of birds or brooks no roundelays— O weary days!

Yet somewhere, in her sweet content, Spring waits God's loving call, And sets her buds, unquestioning,
Since He is over all;
Beneath the snows that fall today
Sleep blooms of May.

O patient souls, storm-beat and driven, And robbed by wintry blast, Who hold, through all God's chastening, His promises so fast— Or soon or late His love shall bring
