

BATTALION OF DEATH MENACES THE REAL BEER

Dry in U. S. Plan Drive to Kill Mellon Order Legalizing Sale as Medicine.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—Invaluable who expect to go on a beer diet would better get their prescriptions filled at once, if they can. Should the dry leaders in the Senate succeed in carrying out the programme they formulated today, medicinal beer, legalised by order of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, will have to be poured back into the vat of outlawed beverages.

Medicine beer selling permits are being temporarily held up pending a decision by a Senate subcommittee. Prohibition Commissioner Raynes, which makes the outlook all the more gloomy for the beer invalids.

In an effort to break down the wall of resistance against the Campbell-Wills bill banning beer as medicine, the drys have launched a drive to involve the closure rule. Senator Sterling (S. D.), in charge of the anti-beer bill, began circulating a petition for adoption of a clause unless the veto is abandoned.

After several hours' effort Senator Sterling had obtained the signatures of thirty Senators to the closure motion, although only sixteen are necessary to require the Vice-President to put the motion to a final vote. Nearly all the signers were radical drys, but there were several wets who thought the bill ought to be brought to a vote, it was reported.

In order to adopt a closure motion following submission of the closure petition, a two-thirds vote of the Senate is necessary. It was considered doubtful whether the drys would be able to muster such strength, although Senator Sterling expressed confidence that a closure motion would receive the requisite number of votes.

If the closure motion fails the more ardent drys are planning to band together in a sort of "battalion of death" to stay on the job day and night, keeping the Senate in constant session until the provisions wear out and yield to a vote. If a vote finally is reached it is generally predicted the bill will pass.

A clash between the Internal Revenue Bureau and the prohibition unit of the Treasury Department is imminent over the rights of brewers under the new regulations legalizing manufacture and sale of medicinal beer and wine.

Brewers in vigorous protests today maintained that the whole purpose of the regulation is to be defeated by the peculiar phrasing of the regulations which bar sale of beer heretofore manufactured but not yet denatured.

The charge was made by counsel for the brewers that prohibition officials, acquiescing in the plea of the Anti-Saloon League and other temperance organizations, aim to nullify the regulations by setting up rules which make beer sales impossible at least for a period of six months.

At the end of a six month period, the least time in which newly manufactured beer could be aged and made suitable for consumption by patients for whom it might be prescribed, the attorneys for brewery interests allege, they will have suffered irreparable losses. It is claimed for the brewery owners that they have a legal right to dispose of any real beer they have on hand, since the secretary of the Treasury has officially announced that the right was established seven months ago, when former Attorney General Mitchell Palmer in a ruling declared medicinal beer sales are legal.

Hylan To Honor Richard Strauss

Hot Wave of Protest at Mayor Slobbering Over German Seeking Money.

New York, Nov. 1.—The announcement of Mayor Hylan to pay special official honors to Richard Strauss, a German musician who has come to the United States to fill a number of engagements, has aroused a storm of protest from patriotic United States citizens. The book publishers, since the announcement of the mayor's intention, have contained a unanimous letter of protest and a good deal of feeling appears to have been worked up over the matter.

The Tribune in an editorial this morning summarizes the objections which have been put forth by many citizens in their letters of protest. The Tribune does not believe that Strauss has come to the United States merely "to fill his purse," and doubtless has no aversion to the free advertising with which the mayor is presenting him, the paper continues:

"But why is the Mayor interested in giving this official greeting? Why select Dr. Strauss to slobber over? These questions are not difficult to answer. His Honor is in a panic. He fears or someone else has whispered to him: 'Water to the pro-Germans,' and he obeys."

The Tribune does not believe that Hylan will get many votes by the manoeuvre. The majority of men and women of German birth wish to have sympathetic relations with their environment, the paper declares, and are intelligent enough to know that cheap politicians who seek to keep war memories alive are enemies, not friends. "A few Sinn Fein Germans applaud the Mayor," the Tribune concludes, "but the majority of those who trace their origin to the Fatherland share the common contempt for hypocrites."

The Living-Cup. The two-handed form of cup, now used mostly as a prize or a testimonial, had its origin in a more suspicious and violent day than ours. The cup, as served, had a cover and a napkin. One man, drinking with another, would hold the cup by one handle and the napkin; the other man would hold the cover and the other handle. Both hands of both men being thus occupied, they might drink without fear of bodily assault with a dagger or other weapon!

Camps in Canada To Train Youth For The Farms

Scheme to be Worked Out by the Salvation Army.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—The establishment of camps in Canada where youths on leaving school in the Old Country could come over for a year's practical training before being placed out with farmers was advocated by Commissioner David G. Lamb, of the Salvation Army, at present visiting Canada seeking information on immigration.

In speaking of this new plan Commissioner Lamb said: "I would like to see four camps for boys established in the Dominion, one in the East, one in Ontario, one in the Prairie Provinces, and one in British Columbia. My idea is that one camp should consist of 100 boys under the care of a superintendent and wife, with suitable assistants. Buildings with dormitory accommodation, central kitchen, and social hall in close proximity to the dormitories. The boys could help with the harvest—going out for the day or for the week, and during the winter work in the camps would be interspersed with lessons, sports, etc. In the spring of the year, the boys would be placed out in situations with farmers. This scheme meets the winter employment difficulty, keeps the boys out of the streets, gets them accustomed to the winter and to country conditions in the happiest and most natural way. A sum of $50,000 would enable us to try out the experiment and I have no doubt as to its success. "I think Canada should find the money. The Old Country has educated the boys, and brought them up to the stage when they soon become wealth producers. Even 'Labor' could scarcely reasonably object to a scheme of this kind."

Is Crerar Right and the leading Statesmen of the World all wrong?

WHAT DOES CRERAR SAY? Here are his exact words: "I stand opposed to the principle of Protection as being neither sound economically nor right morally."

Yet, since the war, the trend in all other important countries is towards increased Protection. Tariffs are going up the world over. The various peoples are adopting this means of defending themselves, and are trying to establish their industries through their home markets, so as to produce on a larger scale at lower prices and thus be in a position to battle for the markets of the world. This Spring, the Fordney Bill shut out from the United States over $168,000,000 worth a year of Canadian farm products, and the proposed new tariff of the United States will further reduce Canada's trade with that country.

In Japan, higher tariff protection was demanded, and as a result early this year the duties on the more important articles were materially increased. France, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, Austria, Roumania and the Balkan States have made substantial increases in their customs tariffs since the Armistice. Even England, the stronghold of Free Trade, has found it necessary to protect her producers and manufacturers, and very substantial duties have been imposed. Australia also has turned strongly protective.

CRERAR asks you to believe that all these countries are foolish, that their fiscal policies are morally wrong and economically unsound, and THAT HE ALONE IS RIGHT.

DISTINGUISHED MILITARY MEN VIEW AM. LEGION

Marshal Foch Expressed Pleasure at Once More Among U. S. Soldiers

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 1.—Ugly brilliant autumn sky and throngs so dense that they repeated surged through the police lines. American Legion passed on the view before distinguished military leaders of France, Great Britain and Belgium and ranking officers of the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

The distinguished visitors, Marshal Foch of France, General Diaz of Italy, Lieutenant-General Jacques of Belgium, and the United States representatives of the American Legion, General John A. Pershing, Admiral Hugh Rodman S. N., and Major General John A. King, commanding the Marine Corps, were in the city to attend the Legion from Convocation Hall, where the parade formed, to the review stand at Eighteenth Street and Grand Avenue, a distance of ten blocks. They turned into the reviewing stand where they stood while the Legion thousands passed by.

Marshal Foch, in an address, pressed the pleasure he felt at being on a more among the men from the United States, who had served with him during the war. He paid tribute to the manner in which the United States had responded to the call of the arms and recounted briefly principal battles in which the United States troops participated. In conclusion the Marshal explained "It is you who have made these sacrifices. More than 75,000 of your countrymen were buried in the soil of France."

Financial Horizon Clearer And The Corner Turned

Former Chancellor of British Exchequer Sees Slow Steady Improvement.

New York, Nov. 1.—Reginald Kenna, former Chancellor of the British Exchequer, who has been making a three week's study of the commercial and economic situation in America, has declared in a formal statement tonight that "the financial horizon seems clear and though it probably be some considerable time before normal conditions are reached, I am inclined to say that the corner is turned."

"I would like to add, however," he said, "that it is no time for speculation. Recovery is bound to be a working through a period of moderate fluctuation, though I hope and expect that the tendency will be an improving one." The situation in the United States, he said, was similar to that in Britain, both countries being greatly affected by the serious disorganization of the European market. While the United States was not as dependent upon Foreign trade as Britain added, United States business not afford to neglect it because curtailment of foreign demand is necessarily reflected in general industrial depression.

"Under the influence of false standards created by the war," he declared, "the cost of production is too high here, as with us, but because of depression seems to be disappearing in both countries."

IN MEMORY. In loving memory of Isaac A. Pines, who departed this life on October 20, 1919:

Two years have passed and none I tell. The loss of him we loved so well. God took his memory from me. But in our hearts he liveth still. A happy home we once enjoyed. How sweet the memory thereof. But death has left a loneliness. The world can never fill. Wife and Children.

LEFT HAND CRUSHED. John Nixon while at work in sugar house in the refineries yesterday had his left hand badly crushed by a steel plate falling on it. He attended by Dr. A. E. McAuley was taken to his home where he is improving.
