cretly tried by masked judges, quietly condemned, and then placed in a sack and dropped in the river with no reporter, no photographer, in attendance. It might hastily condemn an innocent man, to be sure, but then if a suspected man was set free his reputation remained intact, his little sins had not been published, his weaknesses had not been been exposed, and the suspicion that still shrouded him was not imparted to the public.

It is fair he fell asleep and the wig dropped off, and the committee on domestic goods when they came around, stood in front of Finlay's head for some five minutes in wrapt delight. They then immediately decided that it was the most ingenious place of patch-work in the list, and never discovered the mistake until they attempted to pin the premium card to it. At that Finlay awoke, and knocked down the chairman of the committee and chased the others out of the building. We hope those New Haven doctors have been more particular, it is not a subject to triffe with.
