Fifty-Fifty.
An Irishman who had walked a long distance, feeling very thirsty and seeing a milkman, asked the price of a quart of milk.
"Threepence," replied the milkman.
"Then give me a quart in pints," said Pat.
Pat, in drinking one pint, asked, "How do we stand?"
The milkman replied, "I owe yer a pint."
"And I owe you one," said Pat, "so we are quits."—Chicago News.

An Incautious Burglar.
A MAN who is given to doing "odd jobs" about his house was very proud of a bit of painting he had accomplished.
About midnight following the completion of the outside of the house he was awakened by a noise. Creeping to the window, he looked out, and, to his horror, saw a burglar climbing up a ladder to the second-story window.
"Look out there!" yelled the householder to the burglar. "Look out for the paint!"—N. Y. Times.

The increased demand for women munition workers, and for women workers of all kinds, had resulted in the arrival in London, for the purpose of engaging in domestic service, of a girl from the west of Ireland. She was cordially received, and thus she wrote home: "It's a strange place I'm coming to, surely; cabs widout horses and the lady of the house playing the pianer wid her feet, and talkin' to herself perpetual down a candlestick in the hall."—The Argonaut.

Extra!
The editor of a lively little journal in Iowa was much annoyed by the custom of a rival editor who was forever "stopping the press" in order to insert a piece of late news. It seems that scarcely a day passed that the rival did not state "We stop the press to announce that" some one had died, been born, lost money, been arrested, etc.

This sort of thing finally got on the nerves of the editor first mentioned, so he inserted on the first page of his sheet one day the following:
"We stop the press to announce that there is no news of sufficient importance to justify us in stopping the press. Giddap."—N. Y. Times.

Duncan Macpherson was sent to an outpost to observe any move of the enemy. With rifle and a few bombs he took his lonely stand. Suddenly he observed in the darkness the approach of an enemy scouting party. He opened fire. The enemy charged. Emptying his rifle, he flung a few bombs, and the while maintained a frightful yelling—defiance, threats, commands. Believing themselves facing a substantial entrenched force, the attackers retreated, leaving eleven dead on the field. Macpherson came off with a slight flesh wound, and was awarded a medal for bravery. The commanding officer wound up his brief address with: "And a good day's work it was, sir." "Tut," said the gallant and simple soldier, quite forgetting that he was on parade, and perhaps a little piqued at his performance being spoken of as a day's work; "tut, it didn'a tak' me twenty meenutes."—The Argonaut.
