A wilderness experience in Northern Ontario

One need only focus their attention to Ontario's northern wilderness (White Lake Park area), a photographer's paradise, haven to numerous species of wildlife.

"Wildlife photography and sports photography," says Excallbur photographer Jules Xavier, "parallel each other to a degree.

"In both instances, you the photographer are in a situation where your anticipation and patience could be the difference between capturing the ultimate pic to that of an ordinary, everyday shot."

But in another sense they're divergent. During the academic year Xavier as sports photographer, records specific athletic events—the winning touchdown or that all important goal—but come summertime, his attention and his lens are focused on the great outdoors—capturing the animals being themselves.

And today, Excallbur shares these photos with you.
