

I mean I would never be able to give them the "extras" which your gifts have made possible. You don't know what it means to have your inevitable appetites always clamoring for more and being able to satisfy them; especially when the boys are all deaver than life to you. It is hard to say "no" but good for the children! John really wanted a new suit; but we could not manage it just now, so Paed came to the rescue. I had him twenty dollars! ~~He~~ I have so much that others have not; that I always feel we should be thankful instead of rebellious as the children would sometimes like to be! My legacy from Miss Ross has meant a lot to me. It enabled me to help Harry pay for the car, help with a blow for the greenhouse furnace and partly pay for the refrigerator which means so much in comfort.

My dear Willie:

Harry thanks you for letter which came yesterday afternoon. Just here let me tell you they have no "Special Delivery" here, so they took you 20 cents for nothing. However, the postmaster has me and told me there was a "Special Delivery" letter for me and we went down for it. It was too late to catch the afternoon mail stamp's mail is the best. We are all very sorry for coming
