

63 They shall maintain order and the public peace, and prevent crime as far as in their power.

64 They must therefore examine and make themselves perfectly acquainted with every street, court, alley, lane and building, and every other place within their beat, and closely watch every person passing along their beat at unseasonable hours.

65. They shall carefully examine in the night time, all doors and low windows of dwelling houses and stores within their beat, to see that they are properly secured, and if not they must secure the same and give warning thereof.

66. They shall give their names to any person properly demanding the same; they shall have respectively with them at all times a memorandum book, in which they shall keep a record of all important events, such as violations of By-laws, suspicious persons whom they may meet, &c This book they will deliver to the Chief every morning, or when required.

67. They shall cause all obstructions in the street, highways, and on the sidewalks to be removed, and prevent the same from being encumbered, so far as the By-laws of the City in that behalf require.

68 They shall notify the owners or occupiers of stores to keep their sidewalks free, and if such notices are not complied with they shall report the same to the Chief.

69. They must not allow the assemblage of idle and disorderly persons at the corners of the streets, at the doors of public houses, halls, saloons, hotels, stores, or other places along the highways or on the sidewalk, to the annoyance or disturbance of passers by or the neighbourhood. All such persons making such disturbance or annoyance shall be at first civilly requested to disperse and move on, if they refuse to leave, or if they continue the same, they shall be arrested.

70 The sidewalks must at all times be kept free and clear for pedestrians, and the constable shall impress this fact civilly but firmly upon the minds of all who by standing upon the highway, streets or sidewalks impede such pedestrians.

71. They must strictly watch the conduct of all persons of known bad character, and in such a manner that these persons may know that they are watched.

72. They shall, when there is reason to apprehend a riot or serious disturbance of the peace, give information at once at the Police Office, and to the Chief of Police and Mayor.
