talk to me that way—it uses me all up."

"Well, then, you stop puffing and blowing. I've troubles of my own with mother sick and a new cook in the kitchen."

"Excuse me, Bert, I hadn't ought to."

"That's all right."

"But it riled me like the devil to think—"

"Don't think," she curtly interrupted; "cut hair."

He saw that she was in a bad mood for his plea and turned away so sadly that the girl remembered a little—she called out:

"Say, Ed!" He turned and came back. I didn't intend to hurt your feelings, but this is one of my busy days and I'm touchy. Here's my hand—now shake, and run."

His face lightened, and he laughed, displaying his fine white teeth "You're a world-beater, sure thing, and I'm going to have you—"

"Cut it out!" she slangily retorted, and sharply withdrew her hand.

She was equally curt with two or three of the "traveling men," who brazenly tried to buy a smile with their cigars. "Do business, boys: this is my office," she said, and they took the hint.

When Haney came out from his supper he stepped quietly in behind the counter and said: "I'll take your place. Go to your supper. Then put on your hat and we'll drive out to see how the mother is."

The girl acknowledged a sense of relief as she left him in charge and went out to her seat in the far corner of the dining-room—a relief and a dangerous relaxation. And even as she sat waiting for her tea the collapse came, and bowing her head to her hands she shook with silent sobs.

The waitress stared, and young Mrs. Gilman came hurrying. "What's the matter, Bertie; are you sick?"

"Oh, no—but I'm worried—about mother."

"You haven't heard anything—"

"No, but she looked so old and so worn. She ought to have quit here a month ago."

"Well, I wouldn't worry. It's higher out to the ranch, and the air is so pure—she'll mend at once—you'll see."

Slowly Bertie recovered her self-possession. She drank her tea in abstracted silence and when she rose she said: "I'm going out there, Cassie; you'll have to look after things. I'll get Joe to tend the office."

"You ain't going alone?"

"No, I'm going to have the doctor go out—and then Mart Haney is going to drive me."

"Oh!" There was a kind of surprise and consternation in the face of the young wife, but she only asked: "You'll be back tonight?"

"Yes, if mother is no worse."

CHAPTER V.

Haney had the smartest "rig" in town waiting for her as she came out, but as he looked at her in her white dress and pretty hat

GET ALL THE CROP THIS YEAR

THINK back to the last harvest time. Did you get all the profit from your acres that should have been yours? Or through delays, caused by tinkering with broken-down or inefficient machines, did you lose valuable time? Did you get all the grain—tangled or down—or did your machine leave a part of your profit in every field? Ask yourself today. Did I get the best results possible from my harvesting machines last year, and, if so, are they in condition to give me the same service this year? If not—

Now is the time to choose the machines that will get all the crop this year in the shortest time—with the least effort on your part. That means the Deering. They are machines that will give you the very best service. They are built to meet the conditions encountered on Canadian farms.

The Deering binder is a model of convenience for operating. It is a strong machine. You will not be troubled with breakages. It has light draft and has such a wide range of adjustment that it is adapted for all conditions of grain and fields.

You will be sure of satisfaction with a Deering. It is a proved machine. In addition to binders, the Deering line comprises various other machines in harvesting and haying machine lines, seeding and tillage implements. The Deering local dealer handles I H C gasoline engines, cream separators, manure spreaders, wagons, hay presses and motor vehicles.

Investigate the Deering line. Learn what Deering machines will do for you. Call on local dealer for catalogue and particulars or write to nearest branch house.
