THE MARKET.

There was a splendid harvest market this morning with the root crops, and especially potatoes and carrots, being most in evidence. Pumpkins were also quite plentiful, while the supply of live fowl was the largest that has been offered for sale for a long time. Plenty of fresh meats were also displayed, so much so that the section allotted to the butchers was unable to afford them sufficient accommodation, and they were forced to overspread the other parts of the market. Apples were a trifle more plentiful than last week, and while the quality is slightly below standard, the prices remain high.

GREAT WAR PICTURE

Will Be Seen in Brantford Soon.

"The Battle of the Somme," Has Taken Great Britain by Storm.

The greatest moving picture ever taken and the greatest war film yet produced, is the universal verdict in the Old Land with regard to the film story of "The Battle of the Somme."

This picture has taken Great Britain by storm. It is the greatest war film ever taken. Millions of people in England have flocked to see it in the last few weeks. It is said a million people visited the theatres where it was shown in the City of London alone during the first week or so of its exhibition. The King and Queen saw it, and the King advised everybody to see it. Mr. Lloyd George, British Minister of War, said the picture should reach everyone. Sir Douglas Haig, the British Commander at the front, changed some of the sub-titles, but found no other changes necessary. The British Government sanctioned the film as an official historical record of one of the greatest episodes in British history, and it is the first war film that was ever allowed to pass without coming under the official British censorship. The authorities of the War Office ordered that the film was once issued for public exhibition. This film is given Empire to commemorate the glorious achievement of the British volunteer army—which broke the deadlock of two years' standing on the western front, and outmatched the best trained and equipped professional army the world ever saw. No sacrilegious changes were to be made in the wonderful film that recorded their victory.

In order to allow Brantfordites to see this great offering the Courier has arranged to have it shown here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 2nd, 3rd and 4th. There will be matinees each day and a children's matinee on Saturday morning. Further particulars will be announced later.

VISITED SCHOOLS IN CITY OF LONDON

Teachers of Brantford Travelled There Yesterday—Helpful Observations.

The schools of this city, as well as those of the county, and the town of Paris were exceptionally well represented yesterday on the teachers' excursion to London.

Those who were so fortunate to be in attendance, were enabled to take advantage of the opportunity to inspect the splendid school system in vogue in that city.

When the need of a increased accommodation is made evident, the citizens decide what kind of a school would be most satisfactory and then request all the architects of the city to submit their plans. The one which meets with approval is then awarded the contract.

The teachers found the equipment to be of a very elaborate order and in some instances, such as in the Household Science, and experimental Science departments of the Collegiate Institute, the appliances bordered on the lavish. However, this is explained when it was announced that ten mills on the dollar are levied for school purposes only.

After the inspection of the schools had been completed by the local delegation, they were tendered a sumptuous luncheon by the London school board at Smallman and Ingram's. Here addresses of welcome were delivered by the Mayor, the chairman of the school management committee, the School Inspector and by Mr. Rodgers, the principal of the Collegiate Institute of that city.

They were replied to by Messrs. J. B. Gamble, E. E. C. Kilmer, T. W. Standing and A. W. Burt, who expressed their appreciation of the excellent and instructive entertainment which they had had the privilege of enjoying.

The visiting teachers were unanimous in declaring that the day had been the most profitable that could possibly have been arranged, and that as a result of the visit, many new ideas and methods had been inculcated into their minds from which they will derive inestimable benefit during the coming days.
