REPORTS ON THOSE SIGNS

Building Inspector Finds Some Overhead Ones Are Dangerous

Retail Grocers Want Standard 75 Pounds For Potatoes

School Trustees to Visit States re Normal Training

Building Inspector Anderson, acting on instructions from the Board of Works, has made a report on the number of buildings in the city with overhanging signs on the street. He finds that there are 358 of these signs, and that a number of them are in a very dangerous condition. The report has been forwarded to Secretary Brennan, of the Board of Works, and will be dealt with at the next meeting of the committee. It is not improbable that at the same time the question of a thorough inspection of the wiring of electric signs will also be considered.

When the question of asking for legislation to regulate the size of a bag of potatoes comes before the Markets Committee, the retail grocers of the city will take a hand in the discussion. Already the grocers have discussed it among themselves in an informal way. At the present time a bag of potatoes is supposed to contain a bushel and a half, and to weigh 90 pounds. That has been the sale by basket, peck or bushel has increased, and there is consequently not so large a sale by the bag as formerly, but still it is quite large. The grocers favor a 75-pound bag, and advance several reasons. Ninety pounds, they say, is too great a weight for the ordinary grocery delivery boy to lift, while 75 pounds would be handled easily. Then the matter of bags is a consideration. The sale of sugar in 100-pound paper bags has become very large throughout Canada. The bags are not much used after the sugar has been once taken out, but they would make the finest potato bags
