IN MEMORY OF PRIVATE MICHAEL JOHN BLYDE.

The blue eyed drummer of the corps
Lies dead in Suvia Bay;
I saw him full of youthful grace,
It seems but yesterday.

A fair haired boy whose martial mien
Our admiration drew,
Whose drum-beat said
"We go to aid
The old Red, White and Blue!"

I watched them on that Sabbath morn
Four hundred brave and young,
No head-dress save their sunny locks
As down the street they swung,
And there was one, who leading then,
As leading now he died.

The blue-eyed drummer of the corps
Who rests by Suvia's tide.

Give him eternal peace, O Lord!
The crown of warrior souls,
Tho' o'er his clay
By Suvia's Bay
The tide of battle rolls;
And tearful mother lift thy head,
He sleeps among the brave,
The first, the fairest of the sons,
That Terra Nova gave!

Prohibition at Harbor Buffett.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper for the following note.

A meeting was held here on Tuesday night at the Public Hall on the subject of Prohibition. The meeting started at 8 o'clock and Mr. John Collett was elected as Chairman. Rev. A. Shorter was the first to occupy the floor. He very carefully read through the act and gave explanations of it where necessary. He then spoke very forcibly on the causes for Prohibition, and urged that one and all should take a keen interest in such a subject as now is confronting us.

A general discussion followed in which the following members took part:—Mr. T. Collett, Mr. I. Wakely, Mr. W. Hatcher and Mr. H. Butler. Before the meeting closed Rev. A. Shorter rose and asked if every member would do all in his power to try and get those who are qualified to vote to do so; this suggestion was carried unanimously. The meeting then closed by singing the National Anthem.

Thanking you for the space.
I remain, yours truly,
W. S. H.

Girls! Thicken and Beautify Your Hair And Stop Dandruff

Try this! Your hair gets wavy, glossy and abundant at once.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

Household Notes.

Old pieces of oilcloth or linoleum will make good mats to stand flower pots on.

Steak cut one inch thick will require five minutes if liked rare, six minutes well done.

The callous spots on the soles of the feet can be softened if olive oil is applied frequently.

Raffia is an excellent thing to have for tying bouquets of flowers and to tie vines to trellises.

Good beef is firm and fine in texture, bright in color and the fat firm and of yellowish tint.

When making a cake always mix the spices and baking powder with the flour before it is sifted.

Never store any diseased potatoes in the cellar or anywhere else—they will ruin the good ones.

Vinegar will make a new gas-mantle last much longer. Soak five minutes, dry and burn off.

Mustard sprinkled in boots and covered with two paper socks will keep the feet always warm.

When buying nuts avoid the mixed-nuts bait. They are generally made up of the cheaper nuts.

Wounded, But Willin'!

Telling of Some Interesting Marriages That Have Taken Place Recently.

"Do I get a marriage license here? I mean a ten-shilling one for a soldier."

"My fiancé is home on forty-eight hours' leave, and we want to be married while we've got the chance," she confided, after she had made the necessary statements and filled in the form. "We should have been married at Easter, but for the war, and when he enlisted I was up in Scotland, and he went out to the Front before we could arrange things. He's been wounded, and now he's coming home we're going to make sure of each other!"

No Time for Banns.

She handed over her ten shillings. Then, with more smiles and thanks, she made her way outside to show the precious document to a friend who was waiting for her.

"Large numbers of men in both services have taken advantage of this reduced fee," remarked the clerk. "Of course, you know it would be two pounds in the ordinary way, but last October the archbishops arranged that marriage licenses should be issued for soldiers and sailors at a cheaper rate, when they cannot afford the full fee."

"Men in the service don't get much chance these days to have their banns called in the usual way in church. By the time they were called on the second Sunday the intending bridegroom would be back in the Dardanelles or trenches, or moved to some camp a hundred miles or more away; and, of course, the full fee of two pounds was more than some of them could manage."

"I suppose the conditions under which the license is issued are the same?" I queried.

"Oh, yes. The party taking out the license must have resided fifteen days in the parish where the wedding is to take place."

Bandaged Bridegrooms.

"This war must have upset a good many young folks' wedding arrangements?"

"Of course it has. Why, some of them had already had their banns called once or twice, and then had to put off the wedding because of the bridegroom going to the Front. So now they take the first opportunity to come back and get a license."

"The news of the reduced fees soon reached the trenches, and now every time a batch of our brave fellows come home on leave it means a rush here for the licenses. Quite pathetic it is, too, to see the wounded chaps come along with their swathe, who are as proud as ever they can be of their boys on crutches, or bandaged, or maybe with an empty sleeve. They may be wounded, but they are quite willing to wed."

"Do you often have the girls come to take the license out instead of the men?" I queried.

He laughed.

"More often than the men themselves. It's wonderful how shy Tommy and Jack often are at this business, and fellows who have covered themselves with glory, and would face a dozen Germans single-handed without flinching, are as nervous as possible when it comes to paying a visit here. I've known a fine young chap in khaki to stop outside while his better-half-to-be came to fix things up."

Making Sure of Him.

"But the girls are very business-like about it all, and quite up to making the arrangements. A lot of marriages have taken place, too, before men have gone out to the Front at all."

He broke off as another young woman came in and claimed his attention. She was accompanied by a friend, and as she tucked the paper safely away in her hand-bag after her business was done, I heard her say, half laughingly:

"I'm glad that's settled before he gets over there among those French minxes!"

These second and third cuts from the top of the round of beef are not expensive, and they are not tough.

Tea and coffee should be kept in a cool, dark place as far as possible, as this helps to preserve their flavor.

Meat should be taken from the paper as soon as it arrives and never put it in direct contact with the ice.
