

The Modoc War.
It appears from the various dispatches received that the war of extermination against the Modocs is being vigorously pushed forward, and that no quarter whatever will be given to the Indians. They are being gradually closed in upon, and we will doubtless soon have word of a decisive action having taken place. No effort, according to the dispatches of Col. Gillem, will be spared to make the punishment of the Indians commensurate with their crime, and, if possible, no Indian shall boast that either he or his ancestors murdered General Canby; and later dispatches show that this determination is being carried out to the very letter, and that the Indians are being driven to the immediate vicinity of their strongholds. The treacherous murder of Gen. Canby has inflamed the soldiery—with whom he was a great favorite—and they at least, will take ample revenge for his death. In fact the war is one of vengeance and extermination, more than it is of justice, and, notwithstanding the namby-pambyness of certain papers, which affect a pious horror that such should be the case, we imagine that all right-thinking persons will agree that the Modocs have brought it all upon themselves, and that they thoroughly deserve the inevitable fate in store for them. There is a retributive justice which knows naught of mercy, and as the Modocs have proved themselves incapable of showing mercy to others, it can scarcely be expected that any mercy should, under such circumstances, be by others shown to them.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.
Ottawa, April 18.
After routine business, some time was taken up discussing the question, raised upon a motion by the member for Cardwell, for the passage of the Bill, whether the House had power to confer upon the Committee charged with the enquiry into the Pacific Railway scandal the power to examine witnesses upon oath. The debate showed that Ministerial hacks were put up to throw doubts upon the power of the House in the direction in which the Bill lay.
The second reading of the Bill was passed, and its further consideration will take precedence on Monday.
The motion by Hon. Mr. Tilley to legalize the issue of debentures for the completion of the ship channel in Lake St. Peter was opposed by the Quebec interest as a local work to which the Dominion was not called upon to lend its credit. Mr. Cauchon resumed his debate on the Grand Trunk Arrangements Act. He contended the railway company for mismanagement, and supported the view he had taken by lengthy extracts which he read from reports of the proceedings of the Company.
The Speaker, before Mr. Cauchon had time to resume, declared the second reading of the Bill carried.
Mr. Cauchon then attacked the Speaker's conduct, and there arose a severe and bitter debate, and the point of order, all supporting Mr. Cauchon against the Speaker. The House manifested a determination nearly unanimous to preserve to the Speaker his rights, and the Speaker, finding that the House was so decided against him, extracted the proceedings he had just affirmed in the most positive manner, and declared the subject still open. The Bill will undoubtedly get its second reading, but it may not pass its term.
After adjourning some important business a motion was made to refer the bill to a Committee on the subject to the Allan Line of steamers.
The bill was read the first time.
By consent, the second reading of the Centennial Elections Bill was taken and referred to a Committee of the whole on Tuesday next.

Mr. Ross, of West Middlesex, made an excellent speech, on the defence of the liberty of the press attacked by Ministerialists on Thursday night. He is a good addition to the debating talent of the House, and spoke with great force and precision.
On Friday a deputation from Manitoba presented the Governor-General with addresses from both Houses of that Province and from the Council of the North West, congratulating him on his appointment and requesting him to pay Manitoba a visit, promising him a grand reception.

Wreck of the Atlantic.
The Commissioner's Decision.
Halifax, April 18.—The Commissioner convened the Court of Enquiry into the loss of the Atlantic this afternoon, and rendered his decision. The course of Capt. Williams in ignoring the Atlantic is commended to parliament. The ship had not sufficient coal on board at the time of sailing for a ship of her class. The coal was of inferior quality, of which she consumed 70 tons per day, thus giving her less than thirteen days' supply when leaving port. Had all the circumstances of her passage been favorable this quantity of coal undoubtedly would have carried the ship and the passengers safely to New York, but the passage across the Atlantic in winter without more or less unfavorable weather is an exception and not the rule; contingencies of low rate of speed resulting from head winds and fog weather ought to have been provided for. The conduct of Captain Williams and the officers, after the ship struck, was all that could be demanded of men in their trying situation. The management of the ship is commended from the time of changing course at 1 p.m. Monday, until the time she became a wreck. The fact of no lights being seen can only be accounted for by want of vigilance. A gross error must have been made in estimating the speed of the ship, from incompetency or carelessness in calculating on the part of those attending to the log. The conduct of Captain Williams in leaving the deck at midnight is condemned as imprudent, and calculated to create the impression in the minds of the officers on duty that they were not so near land.
The certificate of Capt. Williams is suspended for two years, and that of the fourth officer, Brown, for three months.
The agent of the White Star Line publishes a statement denying that the Atlantic went to sea short of provisions. Though she took on board the average amount of coal, it seems to have burned with unprecedented rapidity. From this cause alone and not from any fault of the managers of the line, a shortage of coal was apprehended, and Captain Williams decided to bear for Halifax. His decision on the latter's notice pending the report of the court of inquiry. A gentleman who returned here from the wreck reports her as now off the shore on her beam ends, with her spars resting on the surface of the water and completely submerged at high tide. She is broken in twain just about the fore-rigging, the bottom is entirely torn away for twenty-five feet, and the bow is separated some sixty feet from the vessel and lies among the rocks. Everything has been washed out of it and picked up by the wreckers.

ACCIDENT.—Thursday night a tailor from Wellington Square, named Richard Gray, while attempting to jump on the midnight train going west, slipped and fell between the cars. He was taken out insensible and conveyed to the waiting room, where he was attended by Dr. Alexander. Although considerably bruised about the chest, he was able to proceed by the one o'clock train next afternoon.
