DIANA WENTWORTH, Or, The Professor's Daughter.

She sat out with John along the rugged mountain-path, winding through the deep valley, with the stream rushing at the bottom. It was an exquisite morning again, gem-like in the sparkling brilliance of sun and heat-frost and dewdrops. The heart of both were full of overflowing thoughts that lay too deep for words; yet they did talk from time to time, and Diana grudging each step that took them nearer to the station. She shrank from the thought of entering the station, where she might meet people she knew, who would greet her and ask her for an explanation of this early journey without luggage or even a servant to speed her on her way. It would not occur to any one that John could be her companion. It was to prevent such a meeting that she had chosen the earliest available train, and her step became quicker as they went through the little town and down the steep hill to the station. They were only just in time, and there was no one else knew on the platform. John put her into an empty carriage, and then went to the booking office. He came back and seated himself opposite to her, shutting the door behind him. "I will go with you to Bellingham," he said. "You will have an hour to wait there, and I have something to ask you."

of her promise to Tom; and she knew perfectly well, at the same time, that if he made up his mind to know her real reason, she would in the end tell it to him. To his question, therefore, she gave no answer at all. John waited a moment, and then spoke again: "I can't imagine what impediment can exist, except of your own making." "It is of my own making," she said, for that. "But perhaps I could help you to remove it, if you will." "No; no one can help me. I have acted very, very foolishly, and I am punished for it." "I believe it is generally so," he said, as he sat by her side bending forward a little, his eyes fixed upon the ground, and frowning as he tried to make up his mind to say something, and after a moment he spoke. "I am going to put the whole situation before you. I don't want to frighten you, but I do want you to understand that our position is a seriously serious one. I love you, I have loved you for a long time, and during nearly the whole of that time it has been my dearest wish that you should some day be my wife. You have just told me that you have some of that same feeling for me, and the knowledge that it is so has made the world seem different to me. For a long time I never dared to think that you cared for me at all, and only lately have I let myself think of it as at all probable. Sometimes I felt it almost a certainty, and dreamt of even now you say our marriage would be impossible, for some reason which you refuse to tell me. I cannot force you to tell me, but I can assure you of this. This is probably our last chance of understanding each other. My time is short, and to-day I am going to tell you what I have in my mind. The day after to-morrow I go to London, and I shall be there at the same time, it may be that, with the best of the world, I shall not be able to see you. I shall have much to do, and my time will be very short. I shall be away for some years—two or three years. It is impossible to foresee what might happen to either of us during that time, and it is equally impossible to leave you without having come to some understanding than this. To know I have your love is an infinite blessing, but I want more than that—I want you. I had intended if you had not brought forward this obstacle, to ask you to marry at once and sail with me to Brazil, and still hope to do so. We have known each other long enough to dispense with the usual engagements. I believe I have your full confidence, as you most assuredly have mine; and I most earnestly beg of you, to tell me now, in your opinion, we cannot be married. If it is not a time for hesitation and reserve, if we are not frank now, we may lose forever the chance of being all in all to each other. Do not refuse in this; you will be wronging both yourself and me." (To be continued.)

FUN, FAITS AND FICTION

Miss De Vega, a New York church choir soprano, is paid $4,500 a year, but the many New Yorkers with their usual thrift require her to make notes for the amount. Fair Magic. Dr. Dorenwend's German preparation for hair. It really works like magic. All who have used it pronounce it unequalled for remedying the loss of vitality of the hair roots, stopping grey hair, curing dandruff, etc. It is first-class. All druggists sell it. An ordinary man will weigh a pound, the statistician an estimated counter-ordinary informs its readers. And he might have added that the egg boiled hard and eaten at night will sometimes not be eaten. Carter's Little Liver Pills must be taken with common Cathartic Purgative Pills, as they are really unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority. (She pining to pleasant words)—Oh, George, I cannot understand it. Why do you lavish this week of love on me when there are so many more beautiful and more worthy than I? George—"I'm blown if I know." A man's wife should always be the same, especially to her husband, but she is not nervous and nervous as Carter's Pills, she cannot be for they make her "like a different person," as she so they say, and their husbands are so. Man in society is like a flower, blown in his native bed. SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—A positive cure for Catarrh, Gleet, and Canker Mouth. W. T. Strong, 181 Dundas Street, London. Home-keeping is the most important part of house-keeping. WHY WILL YOU come when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief. Price, 10 cents a bottle. W. T. Strong, 181 Dundas Street, London. The following is an advertisement from the "Silver Age," of Brooklyn, Australia: "I wanted for the Great Hotel at once, two cooks; wages, £2 per week, and no board. No character required, and no questions asked." What truly forgiving spirits reigns in the bosom of our Australian countrymen! ARE YOU MADE SICK by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vegetable Cure, W. T. Strong, 181 Dundas Street, London. "This egg, madame," said the professor, with superiority, "is not from a hen, but the landlady, graciously," "said just one week after you made our last payment." It is astonishing how rapidly the feeble and debilitated gain strength and when taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For a cure of the "broken-down condition," which she has proved so effective as this medicine, but perfectly safe medicine. A Mass Meeting—The Women's Convention. The American Eagle must be an old bird—he is bald. If you don't want to be bald, use Hall's Hair Renewer, and you won't be. Writes a Georgia editor: "I have resigned from the band, and we are looking for brass horns for a club of ten members. If the horn is played scientifically, we guarantee that it will keep an neighborhood awake seven nights in the week." Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used for children teething, soothes the inflamed gums, allays pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea, etc. a bottle. "My object in calling this evening," he began, with a nervous tremble of the chin, "was to ask you, Katie—I may tell you Katie, may I not?" "Certainly," she replied, "said the sweet young girl. All of papa's elderly friends call me Katie. And he said nothing further about his object in calling. A Severe Attack. I never felt better in my life than when I used Burdock Blood Bitters. I had a severe bilious attack, I could not rest for days and was unable to work. One bottle cured me. For biliousness, see Burdock. JOHN M. RICHARDS, Tara, Pa. Lawson's cabinets, $2 per dozen; Lawson's cartilage-vitols, $1 25 per dozen; Lawson's sunbams, $1 per dozen. Corner Park and Queen's avenue, for one month only. Dried beef, sausages, bologna, pickled herring, smoked hams, bacon and lard. New stock, new store. M. A. ANDERSON, pork butcher, Richmond, Ontario, Canada.

An Instantaneous Cure. (From the Philadelphia North American.) One of the most sudden recoveries from unconsciousness, by a peculiar treatment, occurred last night at the Pennsylvania Hospital. The patient was William Brazen, 22 years old, who had been brought in the patrol wagon from the Twenty-fifth district. He had been picked up on the street drunk, and when placed in a cell he complained of being sick, and soon after lapsed into unconsciousness. When received he was placed in a cot in the receiving ward, and an examination showed his temperature, pulse and respiration to be normal. Soon after Dr. Howell made the discovery that the patient was watching him out of the corner of his eye. Dr. Downes came in shortly after, when Dr. Howell gave him a quiet sip, and then in an ordinary tone, which could be heard by the patient, gave a history of the case. "When received he was placed in a cot in the receiving ward, and an examination showed his temperature, pulse and respiration to be normal. "What do you think is the trouble?" "I'm not able to say; but it's something the matter with his liver or heart." "What had better be done?" "The best thing will be to take out his liver first." "Are the knives sharp, Ben?" "Here they are, sir, all right," responded Ben Lloyd, the nurse. "Come on, then." "No, you don't," yelled the patient as he cleared the cot with a bound; "you ain't going to carve me up!" There was a clatter of feet over the floor, the front door flew open, and the last seen of Brazen he was heading down Eighth street at a breakneck speed. Are you weak and weary, overworked and tired? Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine to purify your blood and give you strength. Miss Alice Longford, daughter of the late post, is said to be the best amateur photographer in America. Her favorite field of operations is along the Massachusetts coast, and her snap shots there taken in the stormiest weather are attracting the attention of publishers, and her illustrated stories will be a feature of a new book of sea songs. The Deadliest of Serpents. The cobra destroys less life in the aggregate than the various forms of cholera, cholera morbus, cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery, erysipelas, etc. Mortality in Canada from these causes is light, owing to the general use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which is an unfailing specific for all malarial complaints. One of the most successful stockbrokers in London is Miss Amy E. Bell, a pretty young woman with yellow curls, who has an attractive office near the Stock Exchange. Her clients are for the most part women, though she numbers some men among them. Facts and Figures. Thousands of people have been cured and thousands more will be cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, the best remedy for biliousness, dyspepsia, constipation, bad blood, loss of appetite, etc. Millions of bottles have been sold and all have given satisfaction.
