Dalhousie, N. B., Jan. 27th.—A very fast and exciting game of hockey took place at the rink here on Saturday afternoon last, the Dalhousie Juniors beating the Campbellton Juniors by a score of 5-2. The visitors were completely outclassed in the first period, but their admirable dashes in the last period were worthy of consideration.

AGRICULTURAL CONFERENCES AND THE FARMERS' SHARE IN THE WAR

The great demoralization of agriculture in Europe imperils the food supply of the British Empire and the Allies and makes it essential that the Dominions across the seas should increase their agricultural production in an effort to maintain the vast quantities of food supplies needed to ensure the ultimate victory of the Allies.

To this end the Dominion Government has arranged a series of Agricultural Conferences, to be held throughout Canada, to explain and discuss conditions in countries where livestock and agricultural production have been and will be affected by the war.

Agricultural specialists have been making a study of agricultural production throughout the world and are now prepared to place information before the farming community that will be of value to each and every farmer and to business men generally.

The duty and the opportunity of Canadian farmers to increase the aid and assistance which they have already given to the Empire in this war will be discussed by able speakers. The call for Canadian farmers to attend these Agricultural Conferences comes to them from the Government of Canada, but, more than that, it comes to them from the entire British Empire. It is their duty, if at all possible, to attend the meeting in their district and to do everything in their power to assist in bringing about the object for which it is being held.

Agnes Geary, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Geary, to Leo Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Comeau of Dalhousie, N. B. The bride who was becomingly attired in Alice blue broadcloth, wearing white fox furs and a hat to correspond, was given away by her father. She was attended by her sister, Miss Maisie, who wore fawn broadcloth with hat to match. Her niece, little Miss Alice Geary, was flower girl, daintily dressed in pink satin and carrying a basket of sweet peas. J. LeBlanc, of Dalhousie, supported the groom.
