ed intention of walking to Alaska, crossing Behring Strait on the ice, and thus reaching Siberia—is dead.

His adventurous expedition, undertaken with the object of reaching near and dear ones who had recently been banished to the Siberian mines, occasioned much comment at the time it was inaugurated, and the lamentable end of the poor Russian is generally mourned by British Columbia miners. Stanislaus was by birth a Russian Finn, and though his father now lives near this city all his thoughts and sympathies were with the oppressed peasantry of Russia. He himself was industrious and lucky, and his mining operations had given him a small fortune in yellow dust. This he converted into coin last May, and on receipt of news from Russia started upon his terrible tramp. He had but barely started when the end came. On July 29 Indian Agent R. E. Loring of Hazleton came upon Stanislaus' dead body lying in a slough, near the junction of the Hognel-set and Skeens. zieton came upon Stanislaus' dead body lying in a slough, near the junction of the Hognel-get and Skeena Rivers. He had apparently been drowned, and in his struggle with the mad river, which at this point is a seething rapid, a large brass cross which he used always to wear about his neck, and which his comrades had often noticed. his neck, and which his comrades had often noticed him display, had been often noticed him display, had been torn from the chain.

It was found grasped in his lifeless hands, and the Indians, out of sympathy for the castaway and respect for this silent token of his faith, carried the body to a hill overlooking their village and there gave it Christian burial. Agent Loring read the burial service and the Indian Chief erected a neat fence around the grave, at the head of which Mr. Loring had placed a wooden cross. Hanging about the neck when the body was recovered, were also two little red flannel bags. The one was a simple scapulary; the other contained a lock of pulary; the other contained a lock of long flaxen hair—a tress it is said of the woman who held Stanislaus' heart in Russia, and whose banishment to Siberia was the cause of his fatal journey being undertaken. The particulars of the finding and burial of the body reached Victoria in letters from Indian Agent Loring to Mr. F.S. Hussey, Superintendent of the Provincial Police.

STEAMED TO DEATH.

The Fate of Two Horses Belonging Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 7.—Two very valuable saddle horses belonging to Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Countess of Aberdeen were literally steamed to death yesterday. The horses were on their way to the Governor-General's Okanagon ranch. Steam fittings had been placed in the car for the purpose of regulating the temperature if necessary. The steam cock was inadvertently left off. After an hour and a half's run from Vancouver it was noticed something was wrong with the steam, and, on the car where the horses were stalled being opened, both animals were found dead on the floor. The horses were thoroughbred animals; one horse, belonging to the Countess, was considered the best in Canada of its kind.

A Representative House On your fifth page to-day will be found the business announcement of Messrs. Samson, Kennedy & Co., wholesale dry goods merchants. No house in the Dominion stands higher as an up-to-date representative of the wholesale dry goods trade. Of all the distributing branches of our commerce, none has undergoned during the none has undergone during the past decade greater changes than that of the dry goods business. It is only the dry goods business. It is only a few years ago that buyers invariably purchased their stocks at stated times and at one purchase, sorting being then the exception. To-day the wholesale dry goods merchants must have new goods arriving every week, sometimes two or three times a week, throughout the entire season, and the retailer does his buying in the same way so that he is enabled to exhibit to his customers not only weekly but daily novelties as they come in season. The superintendence of such a wholesale trade brings only the very best houses to the surface, and then firmly planting themselves as Samson, Kennedy & Company appear to have done, serves to show what enterprise, ability and strict integrity can do in the Dominion of Canada. Messrs. Samson, Kennedy & Co. conduct one of the largest wholesale dry goods houses in Canada. In addition to their extensive staff of nearly 100 salesmen, during the past week they have had their full staff of travelers, numbering just a score, on hand to attend to the wants of their customers. The firm announce a full and complete stock in few years ago that buyers invari a score, on hand to attend to the wants of their customers. The firm announce a full and complete stock in every department. Retail dry goods men in visiting Toronto should not fail to look through the extensive stock of Samson, Kennedy & Co. Odoroma is the peer over all other toth powders; none better, none so gccd-Druggists.

Business Embarrassments.

The creditors of the Worsted & Braid Co. of Toronto Junction met yesterday in Assignee Clarkson's office. The statement presented by the assignee shows a surplus of over $15,000. The direct liabilities amount to $18,000, secured claims $2130, and indirect liabilities $1400, making a total of over $21,000. The assets consist principally of stock and plant. The latter is encumbered, but leaves to the credit of the estate the sum of $22,000. There are unencumbered assets of over $3000. The total assets amount to $36,100, leaving a surplus of $15,000.

A meeting of the creditors of the estate surplus of $15,000.

A meeting of the creditors of the estate of A. Thomas, fruit-grower, of Springfield, who assigned to J. P. Langley a few days ago, was held in the office of the assignee yesterday. The statement shows light liabilities, with assets which it is expected will about meet the winding-up expenses.

21 Bays For Mendicancy.

Michael Cane, a middle-aged man, who has tramped for 3 years, was sentenced yesterday by Police Magistrate Moyes of North Toronto to '21 days in prison. He was warned by Constable Tomlinson, who found him beging, and advised to leave the place, but he tried instead to find a sleeping place in the stable of the Davisville Hotel, and when dislodged from there took refuge on the steps of the back door of Mr. Linden's residence in Yonge-street.
