Planet pitifully pleads with B of T not to expose its untruthful and sensational booming of hog cholera in Kent.

Alderman Arnold absolutely and accurately antagonizes brutal shade tree butchers.

A MISTAKE MAGNIFIED.

Having known the reputation of the firm of Taylor and Williamson for fair dealing ever since we came to Chatham, 18 years ago and also knowing that this firm had borne the same character here for over 25 years, we were more than surprised to hear that they had been convicted in the police court on a charge preferred by the Government analyst of selling adulterated white pepper. The case was given much prominence in the columns of both our daily papers. Had the prominence only characterized the report in the Planet, we might have looked it over, knowing their character for sensationalism, but found the cautious Banner voice the cry and thought it advisable to interview the members of this firm and to find out real facts of the case.

The white pepper in question was bought by them from one of the leading spice mills in Canada, with whom T. & W. have dealt for a number of years, and ordered in the usual way from the traveller for the factory. The order was given for white pepper, meaning of course, "pure" white pepper, but from the explanation subsequently given to this Chatham firm, the spicemen, it appears evident that through the mistake of the latter, compound white pepper was substituted by an employe who fudging the pure and compound bins close together filled the boxes from the compound instead of the pure.

Taylor & Williamson took it for granted as a matter of course that they got what they ordered, and it would be quite impossible for any retailer, without expensive laboratory appliances, microscopes and expert chemical knowledge, to tell the difference of one from the other, for the tints of pure "white" pepper may vary sufficiently to cover quite a scale of shades and the small amount of flour added would be quite imperceptible to the taste.

Taylor & Williamson fully recognize the hurried nature of the reporter's work on a daily paper, and the necessity of getting in news promptly, especially in the face of strong competition, but they think that in a case of the kind which so seriously affected the reputation of a long established firm, it would have been better if the Planet reporter had, before making any announcement, prior to the trial of the case, called on the firm so that the public might have had an opportunity of hearing both sides of the question.

BETTER THAN EVER.

The welcome sound of whirring belts and circling wheels was heard again in the T. H. Taylor Co's flour mill, which revived phoenix-like from its ashes on the eve of Thanksgiving day last week. They put in 4 sets of new rolls and a new engine 175 h p. from the workshops of Goldie & McCullagh, Galt, compound Wheeler, a superb piece of machinery, gladdening the eyes of Herbert Murphy, who has been for 32 years continually in the employ of the Taylors, and who puts her polished brass casing 4 affectionately. He started in '64 with the late T. H. Taylor in the little frame mill, corner of William and Colborne. During the renovation they have been working their auxiliary mill night and day. They have also built a commodious brick house for their electric plant, with which they will light all parts of the woolen and flour mills.

After a tremendous flourish trumpets, G. G. Martin has withdrawn his libel action against Macdonald, thus depriving the public of what was prefaced by so many bombastic threats, as the coming sensation of the Assizes.

Archie Lamont usefully booms project of Government bonus for cold storage in Chatham or suburbs. All good citizens should aid him defeat hoggish Toronto which wants to monopolize whole bonus. Co. Co. nem. con., endorses project.

I. Brock, after a siege of pure and not hybrid influenza, during which he fell off wonderfully in weight, has recovered since the cold snap.

Go into the Beehive. You need not be afraid of being stung by the bees, and get a doll.

Fred. Stevens in out for Alderman for North Chatham. We do hope he will get in. We like to see new blood in council and believe that Fred would make an excellent Alderman.
