A NARROW ESCAPE.
 An Englishman's Adventures in British Columbia.

A London magazine publishes the following thrilling story of adventure in British Columbia. It is vouched for as true:

A bright, crisp morning at the end of March, 1900, found me standing at the door of my log cabin gazing down the valley of Hat Creek, in British Columbia, some 8,000 miles away from England. Suddenly my attention was attracted by a band of wild horses, which I saw outside my fence, about half a mile away, near a meadow in which my horses were grazing. As I looked, the lord and master of the band, a fine black stallion, leapt the fence. I ran down the hill to the meadow, but too late; the horse had jumped back, followed by a valuable grey mare, and, regaining the band, galloped away with them.

I knew that if I did not cut my mare off from the rest of the horses there was small chance of my ever seeing her again. In less than five minutes I was in the saddle, galloping madly after the fast retreating band, which had now reached the fringe of trees at the foothills and were rapidly disappearing into the forest beyond. For hour after hour I continued the chase—through valleys and forests, over hills, and across plains. At length, about two o'clock, I drew rein and reluctantly gave up the chase. For a couple of hours I rested with my horse by the side of a small river, when suddenly, about four o'clock, the tramp-like blast of a wild stallion started me to my feet, and there, only a few yards away, was my mare with the rest of the horses. They were gone like a flash and I, like a fool, decided, to my everlasting regret, to follow them.

But again I saw the chase was hopeless, and had decided to give it up when one of the reins suddenly gave way, and I was, practically at the mercy of my steed. He took advantage of this, and rushed madly after the flying horses. I was powerless, so all I could do was to stick to the saddle. Which direction we were going I knew not nor cared, for most of my time was taken up with dodging trees and drawing my feet up to avoid getting caught in projecting branches. Suddenly, in the fast-gathering dusk, before me lay a sheet of ice some thirty feet long.

At the pace we were traveling it was impossible to pull up; so, hunching up his back, my horse prepared for the leap. He made a tremendous bound in the air. Then came a great crash, a thousand lights danced before my eyes, and all was blank. Some hours later I opened my eyes to see a bright moon shining overhead. I lay for some time in a sort of dream, until at length consciousness fully returned to me and I attempted to raise my head, which was now beginning to ache terribly. To my surprise I found that it seemed to be fastened to the ground. Putting my right hand up, for my left arm was under my body, I found my hair was frozen to the ice, through the blood which had flowed from a wound on my head.

Little by little I gradually raised myself, and, looking about, I found that I was pinned to the ice. Then I saw the greatest of horrors. Then I found that I could not breathe. I picked my way along the trail, and, to make a long story short, after a very trying journey, I walked the last ten miles in a heavy snowstorm. I arrived at my cabin utterly exhausted.

It was ultimately found that my left cheekbone was smashed, my elbow fractured and dislocated, besides three ribs being broken. I had to lie in my bed for three weeks; all this time heavy snowstorms were raging, and was impossible for anyone to get either up or down the creek. Then I was taken down in a sleigh, where I saw Dr. Williams, who could do nothing for me as my arm had set solid, and I could not bend it or use it at all. Finally, I came to England and went into King's College Hospital, where Mr. William Rose (now Sir William) made a false joint by breaking the arm again, so I can now use it to a limited extent.

In conclusion, I might add that, as near as I could judge, I lay under my horse, insensible, from 6 p. m. to midnight. I arrived at my cabin twenty-four hours later, having walked forty miles and had nothing to eat for forty-eight hours.

Chased by a Bear.
 Moody McLeod, son of John McLeod, seventh generation of Roxborough, near Chesterville, Ont., is telling of a thrilling experience which reads like a tale of pioneer days.

Hearing his dogs barking in the woods, McLeod took his gun. Suddenly he came upon a huge black bear. McLeod fired both barrels, the second bringing down Mr. McLeod. He drew his knife and was bleeding his game, when a second, but smaller bear arrived on the scene. McLeod's gun was empty and as the bear showed fight, he struck out for the house with bruin a good second. He tripped and fell, breaking the stock of his gun, but just then the bear was attacked by one of the dogs that had been wounded, and thrown under a stump by the big bear. The smaller bear climbed a tree and was kept there by the dogs till McLeod secured another gun and ended its career. The little dog was so badly wounded that he died the next day, and the other dog is badly disfigured.

Lucky for G. H. Bert.
 During a recent speech Sir Gilbert Parker told an amusing story of his boyhood days. He had a fight with another boy, and was duly reprimanded by his father, who inquired how the other boy had fared. "I just licked him," young Gilbert replied. Upon which his father remarked, somewhat grimly, "If you had not, I would have licked you."

More Cash for Exhibitors
 at Dominion Exhibition

The generous increase in awards at the St. John Dominion Exhibition is possible through the grants of the Dominion, Provincial and Civic governments, Cattle prizes, especially in the Shorthorn, Hereford, Ayrshire, Holstein and Jersey classes have been increased 100 per cent.; in the Clydesdale, Shire, and Percheron horse classes the increase is fifty per cent.; Dairy breeds of cattle receive 125 per cent more money than on previous occasions, while sheep and swine breeders receive much greater incentive than heretofore. Poultry fanciers will be interested in a new system of judging, and the prize list will vary with the number of entries in each class. Dairy awards have been revised upwards as well, after consultation with representatives of the feature in this section of the show will be the separation in competition of the professional dairymen and the household butter-maker, special prizes being awarded for each. In the Horticultural department the prize list has undergone a lot of changes, made with a view to improving the quality of exhibits. Naturally this has entailed the elimination of several classes of apple, not fit for competitive purposes so early in the autumn. The funds withheld on this account have been put into new classes. Potatoes will be judged in a new manner instead of judgement being rendered in each individual variety, they will this year be classified in six types—White Round, White Long, Rose Round, Rose Long, Red and Black. The Women's Work and Household Science Department, also the Educational section, have been included in the increase of prize monies. Entries in the Live Stock and Agricultural departments close August 1st.

Makes Hair Grow

Mr. Warren has an invigorator that will grow hair or money back. The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of. If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it can't be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold at Warren's Drug Store, a sure positive guarantee to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50 cents. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle.

CAT CLAWS AN INFANT.

Nearly Gouged Eye From Child's Mother—Finally Shot by Police.
 New York despatch.—A big black house cat, which for years had curled itself comfortably in front of the hearth of Mrs. Henry Sauer, in Ninth Avenue, went suddenly mad today and with an angry cry attacked a three months old infant of Mrs. Sauer as it lay in its carriage. The infant was pulled out of the carriage and fell to the floor, suffering a probable fracture of the skull. The baby will probably die. The cat is believed to have become mad from the loss of her kittens, which had been drowned. Mrs. Sauer heard the cat's cry and hurried to the nursery. The baby lay unconscious on the floor with blood streaming from its ears and nose. The yellow eyed cat crouched in the corner and snarled, then leaped at Mrs. Sauer.

The animal nearly gouged out her right eye with its claws and tore her face until Mrs. Sauer seized the animal by the neck and threw it down stairs.

The screams of Mrs. Sauer caused a panic in the house. The police were called and the cat renewed its attack on an officer who finally cornered the cat and shot it.

CHILDREN'S SUMMER CLOTHES.

Children's clothes are extraordinarily prettily this summer, and luckily the general taste in the matter of dressing the children improves from year to year.

Never was there a time when you could dress a child prettily and smartly with less expenditure and labor, and yet never was there a time when you could spend more upon a child's clothes without offending the laws of good taste. Elaboration on a child's frocks takes dainty, childish forms. Fussiness and pretentiousness are avoided. Fine materials of a sort suitable to the age of the child, fine and delicate hand embroideries, narrow good laces, hand-run tucks, these are the elements entering into the expensive little frocks nowadays, and the most beautifully dressed children at a children's party give absolutely no impression of being overdressed. They are only exquisitely dainty; and if their simplicity is of a most expensive kind, at least it has the merit of not being unchildish.

The frocks in linen and pique are not so 'dressy' in effect as the sheer frocks, but they are smart, and of course more practical than the filmy sort of frock, so they are being worn for all save very festive occasions.

The type of child that is to wear the frock is a consideration which many mothers fail to grasp. A certain sort of small girl is at her best in sheer frilly things and fluttering ribbons. Another demands a quaint severity of dress. A plain child may be made to have quite a good appearance by tasteful selection of her clothes.

So, whether a mother has much or little to spend, she should first consider carefully the possibilities of her small daughter, the good points that can be emphasized, the flaws that must be disguised or minimized. She must choose the becoming colors, debate seriously the comparative becomingness of round or square neck and have strength of mind to declare in favor of gumpe and tiny standing collar if the low cut is unbecoming to a scrawny little neck or emphasize too forcibly a thin little face and sharp, unchildish chin. She must choose her model with reference to fat chubbiness or slim legginess, must broaden narrow shoulders and cover thin elbows. In a word, she must not buy or make a frock simply because it is pretty, but must buy or plan what suits the individual child.

For play frocks one piece models of the kind known as Russian are very popular.

KNIGHTED BY KING GEORGE

Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Bank of Commerce, who is the leading authority on banking in Canada, who has just been knighted. He is one of three Canadians who have been honored by King George. Sir Edmund was formerly known as Byron E. Walker, but he has decided that he would prefer to be called Sir Edmund, as this is his family name, and the one by which his family calls him.

Joker's Corner

NOT SLOW TO TAKE A HINT

He was a quiet, bashful sort of young man. He was calling on a young lady one evening not long ago, says a writer in the Denver Post, when her father came into the room with his watch in his hand. It was about half past nine. At the moment the young man was standing on a chair, straightening a picture on the wall. The girl had asked him to fix it. As he turned, the old gentleman, a gruff, stout man, said, "Young man, do you know what time it is?" The bashful youth got off the chair nervously.

"Yes, sir," he replied. "I was just going."
 He went into the hall without any delay and took his hat and coat. The girl's father followed him. As the caller reached for the door-knob the old gentleman asked him if he knew what time it was.
 "Yes, sir," was the youth's reply. "Good night!" And he left without waiting to put his coat on.
 After the door had closed the old gentleman turned to the girl.
 "What's the matter with that fellow?" he asked. "My watch ran down this afternoon, and I wanted him to tell me the time so I could set it."

HUMORIST'S COMPLIMENT.

There was no one so handy at paying a quaint compliment as Mark Twain, and the simple sincerity of his kindness of heart added much to his charm of speech. A clergyman of Hartford gives an instance of this. He says, "He waited for me at the church door at the service and, and taking me by the hand, said gravely 'I mean no offence, but I feel obliged to tell you that the preaching this morning has been of a kind that I can spare. I go to church, sir, to pursue my own train of thought. But I couldn't do it. You forced me to attend to you, and lost me a full half-hour, I beg that this may not occur again.'"

WHERE SHE CAUGHT

"What's the matter with you this morning, Delia?" asked Mrs. Wise.
 "O! ma'am," replied the servant girl, "'tis the terrible earache I have this mornin'."

ONWARD AND UP

"We should keep going upward," said the earnest old man, "with our minds fixed on altitudes."
 "That's what I'm doing," the busy person. "I have traded my automobile in as part payment on an aeroplane." — Washington Star.

"Have you had many cases in which you have given up all hope?" asked the young doctor.
 "Not until I have placed them in the hands of a collecting agency," replied the old practitioner.
