WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1914

—We quote from several sources the authentic words of the German Emperor, spoken on different occasions, which have characterized his reign and led to his present ambitious endeavor to gain the "sovereignty of the world."
On his ascension to the throne in 1888, he said:—
"The soldier and the army, not parliamentarism, have won the day. My confidence is placed in the army."
When addressing in 1900 a German Contingent embarking for China at the time of the Peking trouble, he said:—
"When you come in contact with the enemy, strike him down. Quarter is not to be given. Prisoners are not to be made. Whoever falls into your hands is into your hands delivered. Just as a thousand years ago the Huns, under their King Attila, made themselves a name which still appears imposing in tradition, so may the German name be known in China in such a way that never again will a Chinaman dare to look askance at a German. The blessing of the Lord be with you."
When launching a big warship in 1900 he said:—
"The ocean teaches us that on its waves and on its most distant shores no great decision can any longer be taken without Germany and without the German Emperor."
In an address delivered in 1910, he said:—
"Considering myself as the instrument of the Lord, without heeding the views and opinions of the day, I go my way."
In a speech delivered to a division of soldiers recently going to the front, he said:
"Remember that the German people are the chosen people of God. On me as the German Emperor the Spirit of God has descended. I am His weapon, His sword, His viceregent. Woe to the disobedient, death to cowards and unbelievers."
Such effusions as these from the lips of the Kaiser might easily be multiplied. And by what terms may they be fittingly described? Pride, arrogance, boastfulness, profanity, barbarity, "vaulting ambition which o'erleaps itself," all these are ingredients in different proportions in different addresses.
The man who could present to his soldier-subjects as an example for their imitation the savage Attila, the scourge of an age of heathenish ignorance and cruelty, must be at heart both ignorant and cruel, whatever his creed may be.
—Among the many gifts sent to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy to be disposed of for the benefit of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, is the flag referred to in the following letter from the donor, which we publish because of its historic interest. Its history takes us back about one hundred and fifty years, when Great Britain and France were fighting, not as at present welcome allies against a common foe, but against each other for the possession of North America.
It is hoped that some wealthy Canadian will purchase the flag at a price commensurate with its historic value, and donate it to some Canadian Museum. For some time it will be on exhibit in Montreal.
Dear Sir Thomas,—I have been as you are aware—a resident here for fifty years, and yet, while gladly bearing witness that those among whom I have so long sojourned are as fine a people as the sun shines on, the fact remains that I am still a British subject. This being so, you will realize how intensely interested I am in the war now going on. I am anxious to do something for the fund Canada is raising.
There was held in Milwaukee, in 1864, a large fair for the benefit of the then soldiers of this country, and at that fair was exhibited a British flag, said to have been captured at Detroit in 1774 (the donor showing data to that effect). I was determined to own that flag, and to that end bought practically all the tickets in the lottery covering it. I did win it, and it has been in my possession ever since (50 years). When the Lornes were here, it was shown the Princess, who wrote a very courteous note, telling me of the pleasure she had in viewing it. Well, now, it has struck me to send you this flag, the idea I have in doing so being that your knowledge of conditions will enable the disposal of this souvenir to the best advantage, for I doubt, unless in some museum, if there exists in Canada a flag of its age. Note the Indian set put attached to it." Signed, A. McD. Young, Milwaukee, September 14th.

Some idea of the urgency of the call for volunteers in England and of the conviction that this struggle with Germany means life or death for the British Empire, may be gathered from the fact that in the districts, there have gone from a number of the small churches as many as sixty young men to the seat of war. One can imagine what a draft this would make upon the numbers and resources of a small congregation.
On the other hand a great deal of complaint has been made about the indifference and cowardice of many of the young men of the towns and cities, who are ready to criticize, but turn a deaf ear to their countries' call for help, and prefer to spend their spare time in diversions. In order to shame them into enlistment, Oliver Webdel Holmes' stinging lines, addressed to "The Stay at Home Rangers," during the American Civil War, have been recalled:
THE SWEET LITTLE MAN.
All the brave boys under canvas are sleeping,
All of them pressing to march in the van,
Far from the home where their sweethearts are weeping;
What are you waiting for, sweet little man?
You with the terrible warlike moustaches,
Fit for a colonel or chief of a clan;
You, with the waist made for sword-belts and sashes;
Where are your shoulder straps, sweet little man?
Bring him the buttonless garment of women,
Cover his face lest it freckle and tan;
Muster the Apron String Guards on the Common,
That is the corps for the Sweet little man.
All the fair maidens about him shall cluster,
Pluck the white feathers from bonnet and fan,
Make him a plume like a turkey wing duster,
That is the crest for the sweet little man.
—Mrs. Wilson, wife of President Wilson, was dying she made two requests.
To the physician she said, "Promise me that you will take good care of Woodrow."
To her husband she said, "I would go away happier if I knew the alley slums would be wiped out."
Congress at once proceeded to fulfill the latter request, by passing a bill which will close the slums of Washington in four years.
Provincial S. S. Conventions
Urgent invitations received from Sydney and Yarmouth induced the Nova Scotia Sunday School Association to hold two Conventions this year instead of the single convention as formerly. The dates are Sydney, in Falmouth Presbyterian Church, November 3rd to 5th, and the Baptist Church, Yarmouth, November 10th to 12th. The programme is now complete. The personnel includes Rev. W. A. Brown, D. D., International Superintendent of the Missionary Department together with the best Provincial talent, both lay and clerical. The Association has the happy advantage of being able to summon to its Conventions the best talent of all Denominations, and any man who has had particular success in Sunday School work is secured if possible. This year's programme shows a striking array of men who have succeeded. These Conventions will give Nova Scotia with its more than one thousand schools reporting to the Association a splendidly increased impetus in its work among the young. The Provincial Presidents, Rev. John McIntosh, Whitney Pier, and Capt. B. R. Hilton, Yarmouth, have the machinery in motion and plans for these Conventions are well advanced. Schools should appoint delegates to the nearest Convention at as early a date as possible. Full information can be secured from the Association Office, Room 57, Metro-pole Building, Halifax.
Flashlight Division Still Flourishing
Flashlight Division, No. 617, of Hampton, N. S., is still flourishing and sends forth her rays to one and all.
On Saturday evening, October 3rd, a young lady joined our order. We also elected and installed the following officers for the ensuing quarter:
W. P.—Grace Vela Tompkins.
R. S.—Annie Mary Chute.
A. R. S.—Nellie Marshall.
F. S.—John F. Titus.
Treas.—Red Rice.
Chap.—Minnie E. Brown.
Conductor—Fannie F. Titus.
A. Con.—Nellie Hiltz.
I. S.—Maurice Chute.
O. S.—Sherman Marshall.
P. W. P.—Joseph Marshall.
Dept.—Edward B. Foster.
Through the Summer months the sessions of the Division were held on Saturday evenings and were looked forward to with great interest. Splendid programmes were gotten up through the week which proved a great success. We have a good attendance but we still hope for a larger one during the Winter months. We also have visitors from other Divisions which we are pleased to have with us.
We are glad to say the Hall in which our Division is held, has just been newly painted, which certainly proves a credit to its painter and to the community. Oh that Flashlight may still flash forth her bright and blinding light to others that they may see what a good work she is doing.

English Market Opens Splendidly
Despite Titanic Struggle Going On Healthy Tone Prevails—Early Opinion Justified
(The Register)
As all are now aware the English market has opened with splendid prices. In all directions one hears expressions of surprise. This surprise, however, is not shared by your Management who, by a close study of the situation, expected markets to be just about as they were found. If proof of this is required a reference to our editorial of September 23rd should be sufficient to convince those who might doubt this statement.
The healthy tone prevailing on the English market should do much to steady the trade on this side of the Atlantic and will, we trust, effectually stop the panic that existed at the opening of the season among the unorganized growers.
Our advice from the other side states that were it not for the newspapers it would be a difficult matter to realize that England is at war; business is going on just as usual and there seems to be no apparent financial stringency.
Whatever the ultimate outcome of the war the stability of England under all weathers and under the most adverse conditions has been completely demonstrated.
Compare the markets of England today with the markets of any other country throughout the world and one cannot help noting that, although England is engaged in a titanic struggle, her trade is as steady as ever, while the markets of all other countries, even those far removed from the theatre of the war, are either panicky or completely demoralised.
Nova Scotian fruit growers depend more on England than any other fruit-producing country, consequently the collapse of the English market would mean disaster for this Valley.
No less than 70 per cent of our fruit is placed in the Old Country while our principal competitor, Western New York, only sends three per cent of her produce across the Atlantic.
Ontario, unorganized and depending largely on the Western market and the whim of the speculator, is in a position far from enviable and it is reported that much of her fruit will not be packed.
This however is but a repetition of what happened in 1912 and is typical of what would happen in Nova Scotia were we unorganized.
There are many matters that while greatly affecting the English fruit market are unknown to our growers generally.
For instance, few know that Belgium, which has been laid waste by the invading Germans, generally supplies England with considerable quantities of fruit.
In 1910 Belgium supplied the London market with 170,000 barrels of apples; 390 tons of grapes, 120,000 barrels of pears and tremendous quantities of plums, cherries and other small fruits. The total value of the Belgian fruit trade on the London market in that year was about $1,547,725.
The withdrawal of these supplies will have an effect on the English market.
Germany, the Netherlands and France also placed considerable quantities of apples, pears, grapes, plums, etc., on the London market all of which will be absent this year.
The doubtful factor and one that will make a tremendous difference one way or the other is the United States. What will she do with her surplus?
We are of the opinion that much of it will be used up at home and in arriving at this conclusion we bear in mind that with the ocean freight rate again increased to four shillings and five per cent, shipments across the Atlantic will be restricted and only the temptation of high prices will attract shippers to the English market.
We do not wish to infer by anything that we have written that we look for the present prices to maintain throughout the season. On the contrary we look for an immediate and sharp decline which will probably continue some time but with Central Control to regulate supplies of winter apples and direct them to markets best able to take care of them, we think that later prices will again be good (but not high) and will remain so for the balance of the season.
The fact that the American Steamship Companies have been able to again advance freight rates is significant and demonstrates very clearly that were the Nova Scotian fruit growers unorganized as are their American cousins the original advance would never have been changed.

Thoughts for the Hour
Be calm, O hearts of men,
In this dark hour of strife;
Far, far above earth's battle roar
Still reigns the Lord of life.
His legions onward go,
To work His sovereign will;
With Him it rests to bring forth
From what to us seems ill,
The nations need our prayers;
And strong our cries should be,
That peace and love should take the place
Of strife and enmity.
Men seek to cover o'er
Their purposes of shame;
And often deeds they count as fair
Deserve a darker name.
The mighty need not deem
That venture, raised or given,
Is surest pledge that they are right,
And stand secure with Heaven.
The records of today
Time's hand may soon efface;
And Truth's stern finger write in
Far truer in their place.
The God of ancient days
Is still the Great Supreme;
He judges all things as they are;
We, only as they seem.
As days and ages pass,
His vast, stupendous plan
Brings glory to His own great name,
And boundless good to man!
Where wrongs have long prevailed
Shall righteousness shine forth;
And more of heaven's abounding joy
Be known and felt on earth.
Soon shall the blood-red sword
Lie still and rust away,
Soon shall the world's deep darkness
End
In more than seven-fold day.
