Editor of The Catholle Register;
Sir.—Your prompt reply accomplete the object which I had he will have been pulsed to object which I had he will hast weeks Register. The rule which you have led to you through next weeks Register. The rule which you have led town for pronouncing the word 'Kruger' is readily necepted, although many of us residing on the banks of the Otonabee, who have so one slight knowledge of the grand old Calife tongue, which was spoken by poets, orators, statesmen and warriors, long before that which is now familiar to either Saxon or Teuton, was heard of, are still in a quandary regarding the origin of the term the seal. Speaking for myself, and without consulting either Mosers, John Cronan, of Eim street; Thouas Calilli, James Hayes and others, any one of whom can give you an Irleh dialogue as interesting as that of the "Southauge as interesting as that of the "Southauge as interesting as that of the "Southauge as interesting as that of the "Bouchalean Dhoun," I unheatentingly aver that Paul Kruger is of Irlsh origin. Let us subject the matter to a little investigation. "Krulger" is Irlsh for "hard" and tence the comparative degree, "Kruger," was to signify "harder." The matter should rest here.

Regarding the exception you take to my method of spelling and pronouncing "Zuyder Zee." I beg to say that my authority is Mat. Kavangah, not the here of Carleton's "Hedge, that he walls of which I gained a very slight acquaintance with the elements of geography.

We are gratified that our decision concerning the pronunciation of the name "Krugor" gave satisfaction. Even thandard English diotionaries are not infailible in dealing with such pronunciations; we, therefore, had recourse to an authority who has the same thorough acquaintaneo with his nature Teutonic tongue as "Dourro" seems to have with the old Coltic tongue.

With regard to the philology of the man "Kruger." "Dourse" surnise may not be very for from the mark. At any rate, the oid Beer Previolent is hard enough to honestly bear the very "lardest" mans. Germany gloried in her "fron Clamoollor," the Transvaci's chief may be appropriately daibed the "fron President." He will certainly stand a good deal of hamnering.
